MALDEN BURGLARS GET $1,500

Masked burglars who broke into the home of James Harris, at No. 122 Maple street, Malden, during the absence of the owner, roused the sleeping caretaker, forced him at the point of their revolvers to make a tour of the house and point out the location of the valuables and then left him tightly bound by ropes to a doorknob, threatening him with death if he made any outcry.

Finally freeing himself after an hour's work the caretaker went to the police station to report the matter. The officers, just previously, had discovered a break at the home of William B Buckminster, No. 41 Dexter street.

At this house doors had been smashed with axes and the upper rooms turned topsy turvy by the burglars. It is believed the breaks were made by the same men. The total value of the goods taken is over $1,500.

The Harris family are away on a vacation and Dennis Kelleher, their coachman, has been left behind as a caretaker. He was asleep on the lower floor of the house when he was awakened by the rough demands of two young men, who covered him with pistols.

Threatened to Kill Him.

"Show us where the money and silverware are," they demanded, "or we'll kill you."

Kelleher told them that all the valuables had been placed in a safety deposit box in Boston, but this would not satisfy the burglars. Keeping their revolvers pointed at the middle of his back, they forced the caretaker to show them all over the house.

They secured over $600 in silverware and jewelry. Investigation by the police showed that the men gained entrance by smashing a kitchen window. They left no clew by which they could be traced. Kelleher was so frightened that he can give but a poor description.

The men were about thirty years old, wore dark clothes and masks, and were each about 5 feet 8 inches in height.

House in Confusion.

The police found the Buckminster house in confusion. The cellar door and the kitchen door had been broken down with an axe, and as the family is on an auto tour the burglars worked without interruption. The doors of the rooms and closets on the second floor had all been locked, but the men smashed them all in and rifled bureaus, trunks and closets at their leisure.

Between $800 and $900 worth of property was taken and the damage to the house will be considerable.

Captain Foley and a detail of officers are out on the case.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Aug. 7.—Owing to the winning streak of the Red Sox and a half holiday for most of the business houses, there was a great crowd of fans on hand to root for the Bostonians in their second game with the White Sox from Chicago.

The weather was ideal for baseball and the game was snappy and full of pepper all the way through. The rain of yesterday morning put the ground in perfect condition.

The Red Sox got off flying in the series by copping yesterday's contest. Manager Billy Sullivan was determined to win this afternoon and thus get square for that stinging defeat. Lake has his whole twirling department out working before the game, and as it was Joe Wood's turn to pitch the fans felt easy during the practice, for Wood is in pretty race form just at present.

Doc White's knee is apparently getting along as well as could be expected and the other members of the team are getting along in good style.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

They got away to an easy start as Altizer high-flied to Speaker. Parent received a welcome from the bugs when he stepped to the plate and it did not take him long to die, Wagner to Stahl. Isbell was grazed with a wide one and then, though his arm pained him, he was able to hobble rapidly enough to swipe second. Dougherty ended the inning with a fly to Niles. NO RUNS.

Niles was tagged out by Davis. Lord fanned on a low one. And then Speaker hit one that bounced in front of the plate and did not come down again until it reached Parent's territory. Speaker had it beaten, but Parent tried to get him and threw the ball over Davis's head, allowing Speaker to get to second. Gessler scored him with a nice single over second. Doc tried to swipe second, but did not go fast enough and was caught, Sullivan to Parent. ONE RUN.

SECOND INNING.

Joe Wood made the fans stand up and yell when he fanned the three men who faced him, Davis, Tannehill and Atz being the goats. NO RUNS.

Wagner died by the Atz-Davis route. Stahl did the whiff act. French was thrown out at first by Atz. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Wood made it four straight strike-outs by fanning Sullivan. Wood's strike-out streak ended as chunky Frank Smith high-flied to Speaker. Altizer got the White Sox first single. On a steal Altizer was nabbed, Carrigan to Wagner. NO RUNS.

Atz to Davis settled Carrigan. Joe Wood surprised himself and the fans by rolling a grounder to Parent. Parent easily threw him out as Joe did not waste any energy getting to first. Niles's great sprinting ability got him a hit when he beat his hit to Davis simply by fast running. He was retired on a steal, Sullivan to Atz. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Lord made a swell stop and threw out Parent. The first pass of the game was given Isbell. Isbell was forced at second by Dougherty, Wagner to French. Dougherty stole second. Niles squeezed Davis's fly. NO RUNS.

Lord raised a high foul to Tannehill. Four balls got Speaker to first. Speaker swiped second. Gessler produced another single to the same place and Speaker scored. Gessler went to second on the throw to the plate. In sliding to second he tore his trousers and if he hadn't run off the field holding them together he might have been arrested for indecent exposure. Pat Donohue went to second to run for Gessler and went to third on Wagner's out, Atz to Davis. Stahl also died, Atz to Davis. ONE RUN.

FIFTH INNING.

Tannehill got the second White Sox hit, a single to centre. Atz lined to Speaker. Wagner tossed to French on Sullivan's grounder, forcing Tannehill. Wood fanned Smith. NO RUNS.

French got two bases when Smith threw past Davis on French's curious bouncer. Carrigan was robbed of a hit by Parent's nice stop and then Davis made a nice catch of Parent's low throw. French hiked to third on the out. Wood rapped a single to right, scoring French. Niles forced Joe at second, Parent to Atz. Niles was caught stealing, Sullivan to Parent. ONE RUN.

SIXTH INNING.

Altizer did the whiff act. On a swell play, Wagner threw Parent out. Wood gave Isbell three balls just for fun and then fooled him on three straight strikes. NO RUNS.

On a short hit Lord was thrown out by Smith. Speaker fanned. Altizer did not have to move to get Gessler's line drive. NO RUNS.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 7.—After getting their bumps good and plenty in all of the games of the series in Chicago the Doves of Boston arrived in this city early to-day, and this afternoon will begin their engagement with the Pirates by playing a double-header.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Thomas flied to Leach. Becker fanned. Coffey flied to Abstein. NO RUNS.

Barbeau got an infield single. Leach singled to left, Barbeau going to third. Leach moved up to second on the play. Clarke bunted and Barbeau was out at the plate, Mattern to Graham. Abby walked, filling the bases. On Miller's rap to short Leach was forced at the plate, Coffey to Graham. Abstein fouled-flied to Graham. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Beaumont out, Leifield to Abstein. Shean was safe at first on Abby's wild throw. Beck hit into a double play, Abby to Miller to Abstein. NO RUNS.

Wilson fanned. Gibson out, Shean to Beck. Leifield fanned. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Siner lifted to Abstein. Graham foul flied to Gibson. Mattern out, Abstein unassisted. NO RUNS.

Barbeau hit to the centre field bleachers for a three baser. Leach out, Coffey to Beck. Clarke singled to right, scoring Barbeau. Abby beat out a rap to third, both runners advancing one base on passed ball. Miller flied to Coffey, and his throw to Siner doubled Clarke before he could get back to third. ONE RUN.

FOURTH INNING.

Thomas out, Abby to Abstein. Becker foul flied to Abstein. Coffey out, Abstein, unassisted. NO RUNS.

Sweeney replaces Siner at third for Boston. Abstein sent a long fly to Thomas. Wilson out on an easy bounder to Mattern. Sweeney threw Gibson out at first. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Leifield out, Coffey to Geck. Barbeau got his base on balls. Leach singled through short, Clarke grounded out, Beck unassisted. Abby singled to right, scoring Barbeau and Leach and L. moved up to second, on Beckers throw to the plate Miller doubled along the left field foul line, scoring Abby. Abstein singled to left, scoring Miller. Abstein stole second. Wilson out, Mattern to Beck. FOUR RUNS.

SIXTH INNING.

Sweeney, in Boston's half, singled to centre. Graham beat out a bunt, and on Leifield's wild throw to first Sweeney scored and Graham pulled up on third. Dahlen batted for Mattern and got his base on balls. Thomas got an infield single. Beck fanned. On a passed ball by Gibson Graham scored and the other runners moved up a base. Coffey singled through short, scoring Dahlen. Beaumont sacrificed, a fly to Leach, scoring Thomas. Coffey out stealing, Gibson to Abby. FOUR RUNS.

White is now pitching for Boston. Gibson walked. Storke, batting for Leifield, sacrificed, Sweeney to Beck. Barbeau flied to Beaumont. Leach walked. Clarke flied to Beck. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

Brandom now pitching for Pittsburg. Shean flied to Leach. Beck sent a long fly to Wilson. Sweeney lined to Leach. NO RUNS.

Abby walked. Miller foul flied to Graham. Abby had started for second on a hit and run signal and was out, Graham to Beck, before he could get back. White threw Abstein out at first. NO RUNS.

EIGHTH INNING.

Graham out, Abby to Abstein. White fanned. Thomas walked. Becker fanned. NO RUNS.

Wilson hit to the centre field bleachers for a home run. Gibson flied to Becker. Brandom out, Shean to Beck. Barbeau hit along the right field foul line for two bases. Leach fouled to Sweeney. ONE RUN.

NINTH INNING.

Coffey fanned. Beaumont flied to Leach. Shean flied to Leach. NO RUNS.

DIES ON COMMON OF HEART TROUBLE

Philip Rouse, an elderly and prominent resident of Malden, dropped dead of heart trouble while walking with his daughter, Mrs. Charles Langdell, on Boston Common to-day. They were on a path near the bandstand, and when Mr. Rouse threw up his hands, then collapsed to the ground Mrs. Langdell was so overcome that she was practically helpless for several minutes. It is reported that a half-hour elapsed before a policeman arrived where Mr. Rouse lay dead on the walk. Fifteen minutes later Medical Examiner McGrath came and ordered the body to North Grove Street Morgue. Mr. Rouse lived at No. 313 Salem street, Malden. Two of his grandsons are Richard W. Sears, a Boston newspaper photographer, and Patrolman Eben Sears of the Lynn police force.

PRESIDENT AT BEVERLY; PLAYS GOLF

Taft Arrives at Summer Home, Breakfasts With Wife and Family and Motors to Myopia Links, Where Tournament Was on This Afternoon.

BEVERLY, Aug. 7.—President Taft began his vacation this afternoon by following up his favorite game—golf. Accompanied by his son Robert, he took leave of Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Louis More, the presidential auto whirling them over the road to the links of the fashionable Myopia Club in Hamilton, where a tournament is in progress this afternoon. James Sloan of the Secret Service guard went with them. The Myopia links are among the finest in the East, and it is probable that the President may be asked to try a few holes.

As soon as it became known that the President was off for the links, scores of automobiles, laden with members of the fashionable North Shore social colony, began heading for the same place.

When the President's auto came into the automobile park at the Myopia, there was a general tooting of horns, and this acted as a signal for the throng in the club house and on the links. People pressed forward and soon the President was busy shaking hands. Later the gallery began to form for the tournament, and the President seted himself to watch the start.

But later when the President suggested he was open for an engagement to play a foursome was started, the President and F. O. Hirshman playing Robert Taft and Hugo Johnstone. Eighteen holes were covered, but the score was not given out.

Hailed by Throng.

The President's first greeting on his arrival at Montserrat from Washington was from the crowd, and the first handshakes he gave were to Aníbal Cruz, Minister Plenipotentiary from Chili, and General Carlof

KING'S CUP YACHTS ON TWO TACKS

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 7.—The race for the King's Cup is the great contest here to-day by the New York Yacht Club's fleet, over the same course as yesterday when the Astor cups were won by the schooner Elmina, owned by F. F. Brewster, and the sloop Avenger, owned by Alexander S. Cochran.

The entries are Queen, schooner, J. Rogers Maxwell; Elmina, schooner, F. F. Brewster; Muriel, schooner, Charles Smithers; Irolita, schooner, E. W. Clark; Istalena, sloop, George W. Pynchon; Winsome, sloop, H. F. Lippitt; Aurora, sloop, Cornelius Vanderbilt; Weetamoe, sloop, Charles L. Poor; Avenger, sloop, A. S. Cochrane.

The committee boat Electra signaled that the course would be to Block Island, with a six-hour limit, which, with the wind shifting from northeast to southward, meant a beat to the island, a run to West Island and a reach home, thirty-eight miles in all.

The preparatory signal was set promptly at the hour, 10:30, the warning signal at 10:35, and the boats were started at 10:40. Elmina crossed first, Istalena was second and Irolita third, all on the port tack, close hauled. Queen crossed next, on the starboard tack, and Muriel followed her on the same board. Then came Winsome, Weetamoe, Avenger and Aurora. There was a great difference of opinion as to the way to sail the course. Queen, Irolita, Muriel and Avenger holding to the southeastward, while the great wind finder, Dennis, took Elmina on the port tack straight over to the Narragansett shore. The other racers preferring Dennis' judgment to Maxwell's, followed Elmina. The fleet, thus divided, followed two radically different courses.

At 2 p. m. the Queen was leading on the run home from Block Island.

At 2 p. m. the Queen was leading on the race for the King's Cup after she turned the stake boat, and came into the home stretch from Block Island to Newport with a good lead.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Hostilities will be resumed this afternoon between the Tigers and Athletics, and it is safe to say that there will not be a more bitter struggle in any city in the country than will be seen here.

There was a big crowd waiting at the park when the gates were opened at 1 o'clock and from the manner the people are coming it looks as if the attendance will reach 30,000.

Hughie Jennings stirred up the wrath of all the baseball public of this city as well as that of Connie Mack by giving the Quakers a healthy setback yesterday. His team walked off with the victory and several runs to the good. That didn't make the least bit of a hit with Mr. Mack and he will try his hardest for revenge this afternoon.

The champions were agreeably surprised to have beaten Krause, and with Stanage and George Mullin as his battery this afternoon Jennings made no bones of his confidence in getting two straight. His players are not worrying over the outcome of the series and even the local fans will be satisfied if the White Elephants can make an even break.

Connie Mack has no excuse to offer for yesterday's defeat. "We were fairly beaten by a team that played better ball," said Mack. "But we will go after the next three. We miss Thomas badly behind the bat and I hope he will soon be in shape to resume. This afternoon I shall pitch Plank, who has shown consistent form and we surely will win."

WOMAN HELD UP IN QUINCY

Right in the heart of Quincy, within a few steps of the City Hall, Mrs. Navey Carra, wife of a fruit dealer, was held up in the boldest style by a man, who, however, made his escape.

Mrs Carra was walking home through the cemetery near the City Hall and suddenly a man jumped from behind a tree and, grabbing the woman by her dress, demanded her money on a threat that he would go home and kill her baby. The woman screamed in terror and the ruffian took to his heels.

Quincy is all worked up over this wave of crime that has struck the city. The chief of police and the lieutenant have gone down to Newport News to bring back William Oswald, arrested there on a warrant. In their absence, Inspector Goodhue, as acting chief, is confronted by the worst battle against burglars and housebreakers that the town has had in its history.

THAW SUMS UP HIS OWN SANITY CASE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 7.—In his effort to convince the court of his sanity Harry Thaw to-day practically summed up his case before Justice Mills in the Supreme Court. While the famous prisoner did not make the closing remarks, himself, his attorney, Charles Morschauser spoke from copious notes prepared by Thaw in his cell over night.

This unique action of the prisoner in directing his case to its very termination bore out the sworn statements of his mother that throughout the proceedings, the attorney had acted solely on the advice of Thaw.

Morschauser opened his address by reminding the court of the effect an adverse decision would have on Mrs. Thaw and her children. He pointed out that there was no legal proof of Thaw's mental condition except at the time of the shooting three years ago, and laid stress on the fact that the majority of insanity experts declared his client's malady could not be classified.

Jerome left before Thaw's lawyer was well underway and most of the spectators wandered off as the attorney tried to patch his client's notes into a coherent speech.

Referring to a mass of exhibits and quoting the committment of Justice Dowling by which Thaw on February 1, 1908, was sent to Matteawan, Mr. Jerome addressed the court in convincing style. His speech was bereft of any attempt at oratory, and for that reason was the more forcible.

"With the exception of Mrs. Harry Thaw, none of the many witnesses who testified at the two trials for murder deliberately or intentionally falsified," Mr. Jerome said, explaining to the Court that the evidence of the various trials could be depended as fact.

"I don't mean that she didn't tell her husband the story she swore to, but I do insist that the cross-examination showed she had done White a wrong. The fact that this and the story told to the 'Miltonic angel O'Mara' by the experienced chorus girl had an effect on Thaw is the best evidence of his feeble mind."

Mrs. Thaw smiled at Jerome's reference to O'Mara, brought on by her comparison of him to one of Milton's ministering angels.

Born with Weak Mind.

The prosecutor said that Thaw was born with a weak mind, and that the incredible stories so preyed on him that it caused the final breakdown shown in the shooting of White. He argued that paranoia had been established, and that, while Thaw might continue passive for a long time, he would sooner or later repeat his rash act if allowed at large. From his seat beside Jerome Thaw prompted his counsel with criticism of the prosecutor's address.

"Three brothers and one sister of Thaw's mother were at one time unsound, and the hereditary influences manifested itself at various stages," Jerome went on.

Reading from Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw's affidavit, Jerome argued that the prenatal influences the mother described had the greatest bearing on Thaw's mental condition. He insisted that for all time it has been accepted in the medical world that similar tendencies influenced the condition of infants.

"Dr. Harris described that each of the Thaw family he came in contact with showed signs of peculiarities," Jerome declared.

The former Countess of Yarmouth, surprised at this sally, looked first at her brother Josiah and then toward her mother. The three finally smiled in an embarrassed way at the effort of Jerome to make them all out mentally unsound.

"My theory throughout the early trials was that the various witnesses were coloring mere petulancy on the part of Harry Thaw as a child to make it appear the boy was insane," Jerome continued. "Despite all of my efforts, the physicians, nurses and teachers maintained their belief that the prisoner, as a child, was mentally unsound. This must all be considered at this time. It is true the mother now says the facts were exaggerated, but the testimony of these witnesses withstood the test before this and must now stand as facts."

Suicide Plan Shows Weakness.

Jerome declared that Thaw's proposal to Evelyn that they both commit suicide also showed the effect a strain had on the weak mind of the prisoner. Thaw even after he married Evelyn Nesbit urged his wife to prosecute White. "That he should have been eager to prosecute White at the expense of having his wife narrate her terrible story in public seems to me to be the act of an insane man," Jerome argued.

Occasionally the unwritten law might be made the basis for a defence of homicide, Jerome went on, but he insisted that an obsession such as was shown in Thaw's various actions constituted only insanity.

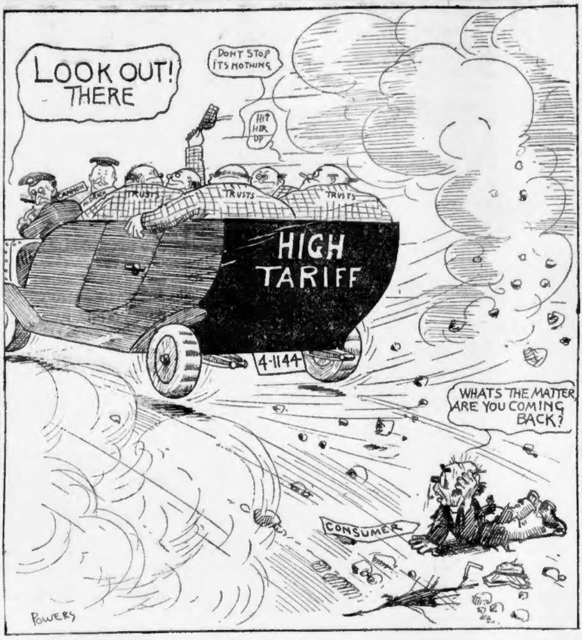
AFTER THE BIG "JOY RIDE"



NEW TURKISH CRISIS BACKED BY GERMANY?

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 7.—The ministry of the Ottoman Empire allowed it to become known to-day that a great foreign power is held responsible for the revolt which has started against the Young Turk regime in Albania. At Monastir a mass meeting of 40,000 people clamored for war against Greece and the invasion of Crete. Twenty villages in the Vilayet of Scutari have risen and refused to pay taxes, threatening the authorities with death. The Sublime Porte feels great anxiety and troops have been sent to repress the uprising.

Ferid Pasha, minister of the interior, has resigned and this office has been filled by Talaat Bey, vice-president of the chamber.

Grand Vizier Hilmi Pasha to-day admitted that Turkey is on the threshold of a new crisis and one which may shatter the power of the Young Turks. The cabinet refused to name the foreign nation which is suspected of backing the rebellion, but it is generally believed to be Germany. General Von der Goltz Pasha is expected at Adrianople to-day.

Here are the causes which have led to the revolt: Universal unrest bred by the overthrow of Abdul Hamid and his political system; the military policies and rigid enforcements of the Young Turk government; the dissatisfaction of the soldiers of the first army corps of Constantinople who have been put to work at menial labor throughout Turkey; also the Cretan situation.

Telegrams are received every day from Albania bearing disquieting news. The government, however, does not desire to submit to the conditions imposed by the army, but will defend the sacred interests of the empire. The Porte has not yet received an answer from Greece to her formal note demanding non-interference in Crete.

SUFFRAGISTS SPEAK IN DARK

PITTSFIELD, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Richard Y. FitzGerald and the other suffragists who are making a tour of the western part of the State in a campaign for "votes for women" left Pittsfield to-day pleased with the hearing given them here, and confident that they had made a favorable impression in spite of the fact that they were obliged to make their speeches from the band stand in the park opposite the Wendell house after the lights had been extinguished. Regardless of the darkness a crowd of 600 people waited after a band concert to hear the suffragists.

Mrs. FitzGerald visited the police station immediately after reaching Pittsfield and secured permission to hold a meeting. The first location suggested by the police was abandoned because the women believed it was not suitable. Then it was decided to meet at the public park. But a band concert had the right of way and the suffragettes waited until the concert was ended. Few, if any, of the 600 people composing the concert audience left when the music stopped. Mrs. FitzGerald and her aides ascended into the bandstand and then the lights went out. The crowd, however, still waited and Mrs. FitzGerald began her speech. She was given a courteous hearing and not one of the crowd left until the last of the suffragettes had spoken.

The courtesy shown the women here has given them great encouragement for the work to be done in other cities and towns in this section.

FOSTER WILLARD MAKES 4 FLIGHTS

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Foster Willard, a pupil of Glenn Curtiss, to-day made four low flights in the aeroplane which the aviator sold to the Aeronautic Society. Mr. Willard, whose arm was broken in a recent accident, exercised great caution to-day, and did not extend his trips more than a mile each or permit his car to much more than skim the ground.

CAPTURES BURGLAR AT POINT OF GUN

Police Officer Malone of Quincy is entitled to the credit of being right on his job early to-day and capturing a burglar at the point of his revolver.

Early to-day Mrs. Mary Donnelly, widow of Alderman Daniel Donnelly of Boston, went down stairs at her home in Bowdoin street, to get some milk for her baby, and found a burglar prowling about the lower rooms. With considerable pluck and presence of mind she spoke pretending to believe that the man was her son.

"Is that you, Harold?" she asked. "Lock the back door, will you?"

The man went to the back door and closed it behind him. At the same time Mrs. Donnelly went upstairs for her revolver, and opening a window, pointed it at the man and ordered him away. She shouted and aroused neighbors. The man ran away.

At 4:30 Officer Malone was patrolling on Beale street, when he heard the noise of a window being raised. Running in the direction of the sound he saw a man leap from a window in the house of James P. Bent and run into the woods.

Malone followed in pursuit. Drawing his revolver, he fired five shots at the fleeing burglar, but none took effect. Malone finally caught his man and a fierce struggle ensued in which the policeman, with the aid of the gun, won.

At the station the fellow said he was Lorenzl Brugnoli. As he was being booked he was also identified by Mrs. Mary E. Donnelly of Bowdoin street, Quincy, as the man she saw rummaging in her dining room at 2:30 this morning, when she arose on hearing a noise and turned on the electric light. As the light flashed up the man dashed through a window and got away.

The fellow was arraigned before Judge Avery in the Quincy Court, charged with breaking and entering. He was held in $3,000 to the December Grand Jury, and jail. He said his name was Lorenzo Burgnoli of No. 10 Thatcher street, Boston.

EARLY WINS LEPER FIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—John R. Early, the former United States army soldier who was for so long held prisoner as a victim of leprosy and who was brought to this city for study and treatment at the skin and cancer hospital on Second avenue, has had his pension cut off by the government. A medical examiner reported that Early was at one of the beaches near New York and that he was capable of earning a living.

In cutting off the pension, the government admits that it made a mistake in Early's case and that the claim of his brave wife, made all along that he was no leper was a just claim. The pension amounted to $210 for three months and it helped the soldier and his wife a great deal, but Early, when he learned that the pension department was worrying over this matter, wrote to Washington declaring that he was fully capable of working for his living and that he was not, therefore, entitled to the money. With this communication the pension was withdrawn.

CHARGE ATTEMPTED THEFT FROM BANK

Esau Gillespie, twenty-two, No. 113 Cleveland avenue, Everett, was in Chelsea Police Court to-day charged with attempted larceny from the Chelsea Savings Bank on August 3. Gillespie denied guilt, and the case was continued until August 17. The bank officials testified that Gillespie had deposited $25 and that he drew out $24 of this. The treasurer of the bank testified that Mrs. Gillespie came to the bank on August 3 with an order from her husband to draw $50. Her bank book showed a balance of over $400 on deposit. One of the deposits, it is alleged, was marked on the book as having been made on May 31, the Monday on which Memorial Day was celebrated and when the bank was closed. The bank claims that Gillespie has but $1 on deposit.

CHINA-JAPAN BREAK FEARED OVER RAILROAD

PEKIN, Aug. 7.—Work on the reconstruction of the Autung-Mukden railroad was begun to-day by the Japanese. Chinese troops, many of whom were transported into the railway zone in disguise, line the road and violence is feared.

A break in diplomatic relations between Japan and China is feared over the railroad dispute. The Autung-Mukden railroad was built by the Japanese during the war with Russia and was one of the tangible results from that conflict. The line is narrow guage and inadequate to traffic. It extends from Ukeden, a transfer point on the new trans-Siberian line to Autung on the Corea Sea.

Under the terms of a treaty with China, Japan was to have the right to reconstruct the railroad at her own expense, use it for a term of fifteen years and then turn it over to China at a price to be mutually agreed upon. The Autung-Mukden Railroad is a perfect tool in the development of Japanese mercantile growth. It gives an outlet into Russia and provides a medium for quick traffic into Europe. It will give through communication from Fusan in Souther Corea to Mukden and thence to the main trans-Siberian Railroad to St. Petersburg and London.

The road is impractical now on account of its narrow guage system. Japan wants a standard guage and objects to the Chinese system of policing the line, while China insists upon Chinese troops exclusively guarding the road. China wants a military railroad for use in military operations; Japan wants a road to enrich her mercantile resources.

BOSTON WOMEN LOSE MATCHES

CASINO GROUNDS, NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 7.—In the mixed doubles played here to-day, Hartford Powel and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., defeated Herbert M. Harriman and Mrs. Howard O. Cushing of Boston, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2. Cyril Hatch and Mrs. Barger Wallach defeated Richard Stevens and Mrs. Fred L. Ames, of Boston, 6-2, 6-4.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE OPENS

Manager Magee of the Grand Opera House opens his theatre to-night for the Fall and Winter season. The opening attraction, which is to run next week, is "Convict 999," a favorite melodrama. Captain Kelley's corps of ladder-climbing and wall-scaling Zouaves will be with the production as usual.

One of the most interesting features of modern merchandising is the policy decided upon by great manufacturing and selling houses to keep the stock in retail stores absolutely new during each season. This requires very often the disposal of entirely fresh goods of the highest quality at severely cut prices at the end of the season. Careful buyers have come to watch for the clearance sales of standard makes and purchase very often in anticipation of the next year's needs.

This year Rice & Hutchins have determined to carry out this policy in all of their retail stores, and the All America Shoe Shops have marked thousands of pairs of the highest grade Oxfords, perfect summer goods, at extremely low prices in order to clear their shelves during this month.

The All America Shoe Shops at 66 Summer St. and 79 Tremont St. have been thronged several days with crowds eager to secure the well known Rice & Hutchins standard makes of shoes at the reduced prices. ***

Savants Find Peril; Mustache Harbors Germs.

PARIS—The Parisian's affection for his mustache and beard will probably not be affected by it, but savants here have just made an effective demonstration against the malevolent propensity of the hair-adorned lip as a harbor to propagate disease. A Parisienne allowed herself to be kissed by a clean-shaven and then by a bearded man. After each salute her mouth was stroked with a sterilized brush. The microbes thus collected were deposited in a test tube and allowed to incubate four days. It was shown that the clean shaven man had deposited a small quantity of harmless particles. His rival's kiss had colonized the lady's lips with the bacilli of tuberculosis, diphtheria, pneumonia and numerous other unpleasant microbes.

Another Year for Reid.

LONDON.—It is stated here in diplomatic circles that Whitelaw Reid will continue at least a year longer in the American embassy. The extension is believed to be due mainly to the desire of Mrs. Reid and President Taft's difficulty in choosing his successor. There is a report, too, that King Edward was desirous of having him remain and that the ambassador wished to introduce ex-President Roosevelt at court when he arrives. Mr. Reid has not surrendered the tenancy of Dorchester house. Mrs. Reid has sailed for New York.

Lieut. Shackleton Coming.

LONDON.—Lieutenant Ernest H. Shackleton, who was leader of the recent South Pole expedition, will undertake an extensive lecture tour in the United States and Canada, beginning March, 1910. The Daily Express reproaches the British government for its ingratitude in declining to contribute to the cost of Lieutenant Shackleton's expedition, though he was saddled with a big deficit, and thinks the British public will not permit or countenance such neglect.

Seeking Lost Records.

HALIFAX, N. S.—A search just begun, having as its object the recovery of the volumes of the journals of the New Hampshire Assembly from 1769 to 1772 has reached Halifax. Otis Grant Hammond, assistant historian of that State, is here to find the volumes, which have been missing for nearly 150 years. Their absence breaks the continuity of the New Hampshire journals since 1679, when that State was detached from Massachusetts.

ARRESTED ON FRAUD CHARGE

Mrs. Annie B. Canner and Mrs. Rebecca Freedman, wives of Louis Canner and Jacob Freedman, charged with having conspired to conceal assets in the failure of the Marshall Hay and Grain Company of East Boston, were arrested to-day by United States deputy marshals, charged with having entered into the conspiracy with their husbands.

The government alleges that the building occupied by the grain company at No. 338-340 Chelsea street, East Boston, was purchased with the money of the grain firm in which the men were interested, and was later transferred to the women.

Mrs. Canner, who was arrested at her home, No. 182 Bennington street, East Boston, was the first to arrive at the Federal building. She denied the charges and said that she and Mrs. Freedman bought the building from John H. Marshall and Mrs. Estha Marshall with money they had earned themselves. Mrs. Freedman, arrested at her home in Spruce street, also indignantly denied the charge.

WANTS TO EXTEND LIGHT CONTRACT

If Mayor Hibbard will approve the decision of Superintendent Emerson of the Street Department, that official will extend the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company's contract for lighting the gas lamps of this city, which expires on September 15 to February 1. That is the longest contract that can be made under the new charter amendments.

10,000 SCOTS IN PICNIC AND GAMES TODAY

The Boston Caledonian Club is holding its fifty-sixth annual picnic and games at Caledonia Grove, West Roxbury. Fully 10,000 people are enjoying the event.

Members to the number of 100 gathered at the club's headquarters at No. 694 Washington street early to-day. Upon the arrival of Chief James Wilkinson the men, resplendent in kilts, formed on Kneeland street. Headed by Fairbanks's band the line of march to the South Station was then begun over the following route:

Washington Franklin, Congress, State, Exchange, Adams square, Cornhill, Scollay square, Tremont, Winter and Summer streets to Dewey square.

The paraders were enthusiastically cheered along the way. They presented a very jaunty appearance and made a picturesque line of march.

One of the most interesting features of the picnic is the Highland dances. A star at this event is little Nellie Ferguson, ten years old, who is one of the most adept little persons in the world at the steps which have made Scotch reels and flings famous. Little Miss Ferguson is one of the prettiest children in Boston. Dressed in kilt and tartan, with a bonnet on her curls and her sweet, intelligent face shining with merry excitement, she is the picture of poetic animation. She always inspires rapturous applause, and there are hundreds of her admirers who will go to the picnic just to see her compete in the dances.

The perfect weather has brought out one of the largest crowds in the history of the club.

CLOSE FINISHES AT GAMES HELD AT SCOTS' PICNIC

A large crowd watched the sports for members at the Scots' picnic. The events were well filled and were won in close competition. The summaries:

MUTINY AMONG SWEDE TROOPS

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 7.—Two regiments of soldiers, sent out to hold the strikers in subjection have mutinied. They have been confined to their barracks at Solleftea and Falun and the authorities are alarmed at the feeling developing among the military.

These two regiments were sent, one each to Falun and Solleftea, when the labor disturbances first broke out because of their loyalty. That the sympathy of the soldiers was with the strikers did not develop until the last day or two.

Notification was given to-day that the printers' union throughout Sweden will join in the general strike. This adds a graver note to the situation by compelling the suspension of newspapers.

TAKES HIS FIRST BRIDE AT AGE OF 78

John C. Elliott of Manchester, aged seventy-eight, made his first essay in matrimony, when he was married to Mrs. Mary E. (Jewett) Howe of No. 57 Buffum street, Salem, by the Rev. DeWitt S. Clark of the Tabernacle Church, Salem, Mrs. Howe being fifty-seven years of age. This was the bride's third marriage. The groom was born in Topsfield seventy-eight years ago. He is retired. The bride's maiden name was Mary E. Jewett, and she is a nurse by occupation and a native of Gloucester. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will live in Manchester.

MRS. ROOSEVELT AT OLD HOME OF POPES

AVIGNON, France, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by her sister, Miss Carew, and oneof her sons, arrived here to-day from Milan and stopped over to see the city. The party expects to reach Paris Sunday or Monday. Among the places visited by the party was the famous cathedral in which three popes were consecrated, Innocent VI, Urban V and Gregory XI.

ACCUSED OF THEFT FROM STOCK BROKER

Michael Gleason, nineteen, No. 128 Chelsea street, Charlestown, was arraigned in the municipal court to-day on ten counts charging him with stealing $140 from Paine, Webber & Co., stock brokers, No. 82 Devonshire street. The police asked a continuance for further investigation, and Judge Sullivan ordered Gleason to produce $500 bonds for appearance August 12. The charge is that when Gleason was sent out to buy stocks he got a little less than was ordered and kept the balance of the money.

DEMAND OPEN TESTIMONY IN SUTTON CASE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 7.—Indignant because of almost drastic warning that she should not divulge in any way the proceedings in the morning's "star chamber" session of the court which is investigating her son's death Mrs. J. M. Sutton declared this afternoon that she wanted any further cross-examination to which she may be subjected conducted in open court.

"I would rather have had my letters read in open court; I could have stood the strain there as well as I did to-day behind closed doors," she said.

The court adjourned to secret session over Mrs. Sutton's letters at 11.30 o'clock and the last question asked by Mr. Birney, counsel for the defendant officers, was whether the proceedings would be open when court reconvened Monday.

The question was not definitely answered by the court and Mrs. Sutton made a direct demand later that the public be admitted. This demand will in all probability be granted by the court.

Although practically all of the witnesses with the exception of Mrs. Sutton, who will go back on the stand Monday, and Mrs. Parker, her daughter, who will follow her, have been heard, there is a possibility that there may be others called to corroborate Mrs. Parker's testimony.

Mr. aDvis, counsel for Mrs. Sutton, and the judge advocate were in conflict almost as soon as to-day's secret session began over Major Leonard's motion yesterday that Mr. Davis's remarks imputing bad faith to Major Leonard be stricken from the record.

EDWARD REAPS $1,000,000 ON STEEL PLUNGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Speculating in the stock of the United States Steel corporation, King Edward has just cleared more than a million dollars as the harvest of a three months' bullish market for the steel issues.

The story was given out to-day in Wall Street and much comment was made on the significant fact that the King's agent placed his commission immediately after a visit paid him by J. Pierpont Morgan who knows considerable about steel.

Not only has the crowned head of England profited by the speculation in Wall Street, but it became known that German royalty has been buying Steel and other American stocks such as New York Central, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific, all of which have made substantial advances to the material benefit of the royalty coffers.

It was three months ago when King Edward's agents went into Wall Street for Steel. A short time before that Mr. Morgan had visited the King at Windsor and during the interview is supposed to have given King Edward a tip on stocks.

Shortly after the interview a big brokerage house in Wall Street received heavy orders from the King's agents to purchase Steel common. At that time Steel common was purchased from $50 up. In the King's account 50,000 shares were acquired. During the three months that followed American stocks had a big boom, and on the advancing wave of prosperity the price of Steel common rose steadily. Last night it closed at 76¼.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. TAFT

TAFT'S FOND GREETING OF WIFE CHEERED

President Taft's greeting to his wife was most affectionate. The President, who is remarkably light on his feet for such a heavy man, almost leaped into the big auto that was in waiting for him, removed his straw hat, embraced Mrs. Taft and fairly smothered her in kisses. The crowd cheered and applauded, and someone called out, "You're all right." "Ha, ha, ha," Isn't that just lovely," chorused a group of handsome young women who witnessed the President's affectionate greeting.

After kissing his wife the President embrased his sister-in-law, Mrs. More, who sat in the front seat of the car with the chauffeur, and implanted a smack that could be heard several feet away.

At Ease on Veranda.

After breakfast with his family, the President changed his clothes for an outing suit and sought a cool spot on the veranda, taking a seat where he could overlook the ocean.

Secretary Carpenter took the Taft automobile to the Salem Club, where he will establish his quarters. Later he went to the presidential quarters in the rooms of the Board of Trade Building at Beverly. Assistant Secretary Forester, Clerks N. T. Webster and W. S. Henniman, and Telegrapher Smithers are already at work. work.

FEDERAL EXPRESS WITH TAFT REACHES HERE ON SCHEDULE

William Howard Taft, President of the United States, reached Boston from Washington at 7 o'clock to-day, asleep in his private car Olympia, which was attached to the rear end of the speedy Federal express. At 7:25 the Olympia, containing the President, seven Secret Service men and a dozen clerks, was whisked away over the Boston & Albany tracks to East Somerville, where a Boston & Maine engine took it in tow and landed the President at Monstserrat at 8:32 o'clock.

President Taft showed his face just once in Boston, when he stuck his head out the rear door of the Olympia and sought to learn why he had been so unceremoniously awakened by the banging of hammers on the wheels and couplings of his car. Secret Service Man James Sloan was on the platform watching operations, and the President addressed him.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"Guess they can't pull you out," was the remark of Mr. Sloan.

The President laughed and disappeared within the car, thoroughly awake. Meantime a dozen or more train hands and a few inspectors and yard masters were hurrying about the car to see what was the matter. Engine No. 1184, a mogul of the B. & A., with Engineer George Wheeler in charge, was vainly trying to get a coupling with the Olympia. Each time she backed down on the car there was a crash and rattle of iron and groaing of breaks. Once it was thought the connection had been made.

Off for Beverly.

"Let 'er go!" shouted the yard master. Engineer Wheeler released his brakes with a shriek and the mogul started. The Olympia stood still. By that time the President became curious and looked out to see what was going on. He was greeted by a score of trainmen, a dozen policemen, as many detectives of the local force, and a few hundred curious people who had congregated at the end of the train shed.

At this point the yardmaster made the discovery that because of the sharp curve where the Olympia was standing, it was impossible to bring the engine to the car at a proper angle to connect the couplings.

"Run down, out of the way," was the order to Engineer Wheeler.

"Get a switcher up here in a hurry," was the next order to an inspector. Engineer Wheeler and his mogul glided away and a switcher appeared.

"Yank the car to track 13," was the next order.

Down the yard and over switches and back on to track 13 went the President and his car. Then Engineer Wheeler came down the line and hooked on with little difficulty on the straight rail.

"How does the President like being doubled back from track 26 to track 13?" asked an AMERICAN reporter of Detective Sloan.

"That's a joke, at that," replied Sloan. "I'll see."

Into the Olympia went Mr. Sloan, and in a minute he came out.

"The President sees the joke, and he's laughing now," reported Sloan.

Then Conductor Thomas J. Sullivan, to whom fell the honor of getting the car through to East Somerville, waved his hand to Engineer Wheeler and minus the customary "Board!" the President was away. As the car clattered along over the switches hundreds waved their hats and cheered, but the President was evidently busy getting into his morning attire.

In Boston on Time.

Then retired several score of train men, inspectors and yardmasters, a dozen police from the Lagrange street station in charge of Sergeant Sumner Foster, a dozen plain clothes men sent out from headquarters, and a crowd of citizens.

President Taft and his company of detectives and clerks climbed into the Olympia about 4:15 last night in the new depot at Washington. At 5.35 the big Pacific type mogul took the train of nine cars—three more than usual—out of the station and started on the trip to Boston. The train was on time to the second when it pulled into the South Station.

In the Olympia were President Taft, James Sloan and L. C. Wheeler of the secret service, and some colored porters.

In the car ahead of the Olympia were five other secret service men, Frank W. Carpenter, private secretary to the President, and his assistant, Rudolph Forester; Captain Archibald W. Butt, the President's military aide, and Edward W. Smithers, chief telegrapher at the White House, who will perform the same duties at the Summer capital. There were also a dozen clerks, who will be distributed about the executive offices in Beverly.

F. A. Ross was conductor of the Olympia and R. F. Puffenberger, who is brakeman for the President's cars everywhere, was in charge of that end of the work.

Cabinet to Make Visits.

When the Federal Express stopped at Providence an AMERICAN reported boarded the train. Not seeing anyone around to direct him, he made his way to the President's private car. Finding no one on guard there, he passed the line where seven secret service men were supposed to be keeping a tight line about the President's personal safety, and walked leisurely into the Olympia. The only person he met was a porter, shining shoes. Conversation with him soon aroused Secret Service Man Sloan, who under the circumstances politely asked the reporter to wait until the President awoke. Later Mr. Sloan came out and chatted with the reporter, giving the itinerary of the President's fifty-second birthday trip, which starts September 15, and detail of the journey to Beverly.

The President expects that members of his cabinet will visit him in Beverly and take a few whacks at the Essex County Golf Club course.

In advance of the Federal Express, on another fast train, came the horses which the executive party will use, and the automobile which is for the President's exclusive use.

One of the matters of business which the President will attend to on his 13,000-mile tour of this continent in the Fall will be a meeting with President Diaz of Mexico on October 16, at which time these Presidents of two nations will talk over plans for an international bridge over the Rio Grande at El Paso, Texas.

Those who saw the President during his trip from Washington noticed that he looked particularly happy. His smile was even broader than usual for he has been waiting for weeks for the opportunity to join his family at Beverly for the long anticipated vacation. The President will be at Beverly until September 15—his fifty-second birthday—when he will begin a "swing around the circle" in a trip 18,000 miles long during which he will visit every State in the union.

His car will be a sort of roving White House. The tentative itinerary is as follows:

September 15, Beverly to Boston in automobile; 16, Chicago; 17, Madison, Wis.; 18, Finneapolis; 20, Des Moines and Omaha; 21, Denver; 22, Colorado Springs; 23, Glenwood Springs; 24, Salt Lake City; 27, Pocatello, Idaho; and Butte and Helena, Mont.; 28, Spokane; 29, North Yakima and Seattle; 30, Alaska-Yukon exposition.

To Visit Yukon Exposition

October 1 he will be at the Alaska-Yukon exposition; 2, Portland, Ore.; 4, Sacramento; 5, Oakland and San Francisco; 6, 7, 8 and 9, Yosemite Valley; 11 and 12, Los Angeles; 14, Grand Canyon; 15, Albuquerque, N. M.; 16, El Paso, Texas; 17 and 18, San Antonio; 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22, Corpus Christi; 23 and 24, Dallas, Texas; 25, St. Louis; 26, by float to Cairo, Ill., and Hickman, Ky.; 27, Memphis, Tenn., and Helena, Ark.; 28, Vicksburg; 29 and 30, New Orleans.

November 1, Jackson, Miss.; 2, Columbus, Miss., and Birmingham, Ala.; 4, Macon, Ga., and Savannah; 5, Charleston, S. C.; 6 and 7, Augusta, Ga.; 8, Columbia, S. C.; 9, Wilmington, N. C., and Richmond, Va.; 10, Washington; 11, Middletown, Conn.; 19 and 20, Norfolk and Hampton, W. Va.; 21, Washington.

KIDNAPPED AND FORCED TO WED, SEEKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Georgiana Malbolt Meneau, twenty-two years of age, of South Sherborn, has filed a petition in the Superior Court, East Cambridge, for the annulment of her marriage to Zuttie Meneau, at Moosup, Ct., on May 14, 1908, charging that she was held a prisoner in a house at Holyoke several days and then compelled to marry Meneau, escaping four days after the ceremony, and that she has since lived apart from him.

Considerable mystery is attached to the filing of the petition. The details of the alleged kidnapping and holding the girl in duress, and her subsequent marriage while she was under restraint, are being carefully guarded by Attorney William O. Cutler of Natick, counsel for Mrs. Meneau, who is now making her home with the family of George Goulding, a farmer in South Sherborn.

According to the story as told by various members of the Goulding family, the girl was held a prisoner in Holyoke, and in some manner communicated with them. They immediately went to Holyoke and with the aid of the local authorities secured her release.

Zuttie Meneau, the young husband, it is said, made several attempts to see his bride of four days, but each time was warned away by members of the family. Early last Spring he appeared, accompanied by a friend. He called upon Constable M. F. Campbell, and after telling him his story the officer accompanied the young husband to the Goulding home. Meneau was permitted to talk with his wife and told the constable that she refused to go back and live with.

13 INJURED BY RUNAWAY TROLLEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Going at a high rate of speed a crowded Grove street car, bound from Hoboken to the Pennsylvania ferry at Jersey City, to-day jumped the tracks, and running for several yards over the cobblestones toppled over, throwing the occupants out and injuring thirteen, three seriously.

RUSSIAN AUTHORESS KILLED BY ROBBERS

KIEV, Austria, Aug. 7.—Robbers killed Mme. Niegovskaia, the Russian authoress, in a pistol duel she fought with them when they invaded her home on her estate near Oorautch, in the absence of her husband. She was shot twice before she succumbed and had put the robbers to flight before she fell.

STEAMBOAT MEN WIN.

PORTLAND, Aug. 7.—By the decree of Justice Peabody of the Supreme Court, handed down to-day, the Sebago Lake, Songo River and Bay of Naples Steam Boat Company wins a victory over the Du Pont Company in the bill of equity brought against the defendant corporation in which the plaintiff prays that the former be restrained from floating 3,500,000 feet of timber down the Songo river.

CRIPPLED BOY MRS. DREXEL'S BENEFICIARY

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 7.—Joey Walsh, the newsboy outside the Casino entrance, is telling proudly how Mrs. John R. Drexel bought him some medicine to cure his rheumatism; also how she once "shouted" on the soda water.

Says Joey: "My rheumatism's lots better. Mrs. Drexel bought me some medicine. The other day Mrs. Drexel drove up to the Casino and I opened her carriage door as I have for other people. I had rheumatism terrible and it made me limp. 'Joey,' says she to me, 'Joey, what makes you limp?' 'It's rheumatism, ma'am,' says I.

"She says to me, 'Joey, you go right into the drug store and get some medicine for it and tell them to charge it to me.' And I did and the medicine is curing me. I expect to get all over it by the time the bottle is used up.

"Mrs. Drexel is pretty nice. Once before she saw me on Thames street and shouted me to a glass of soda. You wouldn't think these rich ladies would bother with a newsboy, would you?"

O'HARE WILL SHOW BROKEN CONTRACT

Alderman J. Frank O'Hare to-day reiterated his charges that mud and clay have been deposited on the bathing beaches at K and L streets, and takes exception to the statements of the bath trustees and the contractor that only sand was used in resurfacing the beaches, as required by contract. The Alderman will point it out to anybody who visits the beach to-morrow at 9 a. m. at low water.

LIVERMORE'S YACHT GIVEN UP FOR DEBT

Jesse L. Livermor, the fair haired young man who was hailed a little more than a year ago as one of the "wizards" of Wall Street, has turned his steam yacht Anita over to a brokerage firm as security for an account, according to a New York dispatch to-day. When the public discoverd Mr. Livermore in Wall Street about two years ago he was the reputed possessor of $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 which he had made speculating in stocks in the 1907 bear market. He was acclaimed the very best plunger of the year—a real Wall Street surprise.

Mr. Livermore turned his yacht over to the brokerage firm last August, at the end of the bull pool in cotton, but the firm didn't take possession of it until about two weeks ago. The yacht is being offered for sale by the McIntosh Yacht Agency of New York, for $50,000.

The boat has been registered in the name of J. A. McIntosh, head of the agency, and is flying his flag. It is reported that if the yacht brought $50,000 it would not cover Mr. Livermore's indebtedness to the broker owners, but this was denied by Mr. Livermore's secretary. One or two other brokerage firms were looking up the ownership of the yacht before its title was transferred from Livermore's to McIntosh's name.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE TO CALL CONVENTION

The Republican State Committee has been called to meet on next Friday to arrange for the State convention of the party, which will be held in the first week of October. The committee also will select the chairman of the convention and name four members-at-large for the committee on resolutions. The convention this year will consist of 1,816 delegates, the largest number yet seated, and because of its size will be held at Symphony Hall, as it has outgrown the halls in the centre of the city. Ex-Governor John L. Bates can be the chairman of the convention if he will accept the honor.

ELKINS IGNORANT OF ROYAL LINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Senator Elkins, sometimes called the "Duke of West Virginia," when informed to-day of the reputed discoveries of Mrs. Albert L. Richardson, a noted genealogist, which connect Senator Elkins's wife's family and Miss Katherine Elkins with the mediaeval Italian Kings, declared he knew nothing of Mrs. Richardson's researches save what he saw in the newspapers, and that he did not put much faith in them.

MARIETTA HOME AGAIN.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 7.—The gunboat Marietta has arrived here to-day from Guantanamo with all well on board. The little gunboat will undergo some slight repairs at the local yard.

1,000 GIRLS ARE SAVED BY A FIRE DRILL

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—More than one thousand girls were saved by a fire drill to-day when fire was discovered in the west wing of the House of the Good Shepherd at Ninetieth street and Avenue A.

The flames, which started on the first floor, had gained considerable headway before they were discovered. The inmates of the other wings were aroused as were the four hundred children in St. Joseph's Hospital, directly across the street. The signal for a fire drill was sounded in both institutions and the children were lined in the alleyways. The assurances of the priests and sisters that there was no immediate danger were just beginning to restore order when the fire engine arrived.

The clanging of the bells and the shouts of the firemen were responsible for a fresh outbreak. Weeping and crying girls, half-clad, rushed through the corridors, heedless of the warnings of the sisters. A call for the police reserves was turned in, but by the time they arrived under Sergeant Hamilton order had once more been restored.

PAPER TRADE MEN ON PLEASURE BENT

The delegates to the semi-annual convention of the National Paper Trade Association, which met at Boston, are at Plymouth to-day as guests of the Boston members. A number of the delegates will be entertained at Mount Tom on Monday by the Holyoke paper manufacturers.

THURSTON SEEKS CAMBRIDGE OFFICE

Former Mayor Charles H. Thurston of Cambridge, who is spending the Summer at Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H., has announced himself as a candidate for city auditor to succeed Harry T. Upham. Mr. Upham has held the position for some ten or twelve years, but has resigned to take a government position.

MRS. EDDY IN ACCORD WITH MRS. STETSON

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—"There is now and always has been the most perfect harmony between Mrs. Eddy and Mrs. Stetson, and all insinuations and intimations to the contrary are, in my opinion, dictated by malice or misunderstanding."

So declared R. P. Verrall, librarian of the First Church of Christian Scientists answering a question as to the meaning of an order issued by Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the direct effect of which has been to cause Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson and about fifteen other teachers and readers of the First Church to transfer their ministrations to students and patients from the church building to other places not physically connected with the great edifice at Ninety-sixth street and Central Park West.

Verrall is one of those who have thus been affected. Mrs. Stetson denies herself to newspaper men. It is understod, however, that Verrall, who for years has been associated with her in advancing the cause of Christian Science, is authorized to speak for Mrs. Stetson.

Mrs. Stetson's residence occupies a plot in West Ninety-sixth street immediately in the rear of the First Church. The two buildings are separated by an areaway about eight feet wide. The rear entrance of the church is on a direct line with the front entrance of Mrs. Stetson's residence. It was asserted, however, that there is no actual physical connection between them. For this latter reason it is held that the order does not mean that Mrs. Stetson will will have to teach and practice away from her home.

CIRCULAR SHOWS GAME LAW CHANGES

The Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association has sent out a circular stating the chief changes by the 1909 Legislature in game laws in this State. Raisers of pheasants, it says, may kill them on their own land and sell them regardless of season. Persons may obtain permission to buy and sell artificially raised trout during the closed season. State reservations are refuges for birds and all game. The shooting season for quail, woodcock and partridges is from October 15 to November 15. The season for shore, marsh and beach birds opens August 1. The open season for geese, brant, teal and ducks, other than the wood variety, is from September 15 to December 31. Deer which destroy crops may be killed with shotguns by landowners or occupants whose property is being destroyed. The penalty for using a ferret is $50.

MYSTERY IN THE DEATH OF MAN IN SOUTH BOSTON POLICE STATION

SALVATION ARMY WOMAN PROTESTS BAN ON RECEIVING OF ALMS

Boston Citizens, Roused by Demoralization of Costly Department, Give Instances of Neglect of Officers to Suppress Crime.

The sudden death in a cell of the Broadway, South Boston, police station, early to-day of John Copp, before a physician had been called to see what was the matter with him, has an element of mystery that has caused Medical Examiner Magrath to decide that an autopsy is necessary. The man was arrested as drunk, and twenty minutes before he died a patrolman had been to his cell.

One question being asked is: "Why was not medical aid called before, if the man was sick or in a serious condition?"

While Medical Examiner Magrath says that death was probably due to alcoholism, he declares that further investigation is necessary to definitely establish the cause of death. The police of this station are much concerned over the affair. There were no marks on the man's body, and his only evident sickness was earlier in the evening.

Last night Percy F. Ryan of No. 470 West Fourth street, found a man apparently drunk, mumbling and seemingly in a very bad way. He was only able to get out of him the word "Quincy." He helped the fellow to a park off Dorchester avenue, and as the man seemed to become worse, hunted up Officer Hurley, who worked over him a bit to learn where he lived and what was the matter. Finding evidence of drink, Hurley called the patrol wagon and sent the man in.

In the patrol wagon the man was somewhat relieved and talked a little. He was booked as John Copp, aged forty-six, giving as his home as Broadway, no town. Several times during the early hours he was visited by Patrolman John Callahan, and at 3:30 Copp made some reply.

At 4 o'clock, when spoken to, Copp made no answer, and then the officer called Dr. Walter J. Cavanaugh, who found that he was dead, and gave it as an opinion that he died from alcoholism, in the absence of any outward marks of injury.

Will Perform Autopsy.

Medical Examiner Magrath viewed the remains at the police station.

"So far as I can see, in the absence of any marks of injury, death resulted from alcoholism," said Mr. Magrath. "The body will be removed to the City Hospital morgue for an autopsy. I am surprised that there are not more deaths from alcoholism, considering how many there are who drink to excess during the hot weather."

SALVATIONISTS IN A PROTEST OVER ACTION OF POLICE

Mrs. Emma Woodcock, a major in the American Salvation Army, who has been summoned into the Boston Municipal Court next Wednesday on a charge of violating the new statute against receiving alms in the public streets, asks the pertinent question to-day why the police are so energetic against the Salvation Army, which is collecting money for charitable work, when hurdy-gurdy players can collect money in the streets for private gain. Major Woodcock says:

"It seems very unfair that hurdy-gurdy players can make collections in stores and streets when the police would handicap a worthy cause which is doing much good.

"When our meeting was held on the hill near Scollay square last Monday night I was notified, as were the Socialists, who held meetings on the hill before I did, that I would be summoned into court. Tuesday morning I had a summons served on me to appear in court next Wednesday morning.

"At the time the summons was served I was not forbidden to make collections. I collected last night, as it is the only support we have to carry on our work here. I really can't say what the outcome will be.

Warned by Police.

"Captain Jesse Stewart, who is in charge of our work in Boston, went to the overseers of the poor, who are mentioned in the law as the board to apply to for a permit, but they didn't know anything about the issuing of permits and said that some mistake had been made.

"We have only started in Boston, coming here two months ago. Our purpose is to assist young girls out of work and without homes until they get positions. As our collections are our only support to carry on the work, we do not know what we shall do if the police stop the public collections."

Ensign Jesse Tester of the regular Salvation Army, with headquarters at No. 755 Washington street, was notified last Wednesday night by a patrolman that he must stop making collections in the street or he would be summoned into court.

Major Shepard, who is in charge at the regular Salvation Army headquarters, said to-day:

"So far as we understood the law it was to regulate the Thanksgiving and Christmas collections. I mean the box collections on street corner and public places during the holidays.

"I don't believe Commissioner O'Meara had any intention whatever of stopping our collections in our ordinary street meetings. I think it was simply to vest some one with the authority to regulate the public meetings and collections for the interest of the traffic regulations on Boston's busy streets."

The law under which these summonses were issued is worthy of study.

O'Meara Had the Law Passed.

To begin with the law was passed directly at the solicitation of Police Commissioner O'Meara, the czar of Boston, who had some dispute with the Salvationists over the collections for the poor last Thanksgiving and Christmas. These collections were to be used to buy food for the hungry, but Police Commissioner O'Meara took exception because he was not given undisputed control over it, and had a law passed requiring that "no person shall receive money, food, clothing or other articles in the streets or other public places EXCEPT UPON SUCH TERMS AND CONDITIONS AND WITHIN SUCH TIMES AND PLACES as may be prescribed by license granted by the overseers of the poor and approved BY THE POLICE COMMISSIONER."

No permits have been granted under this act. In fact, the secretary of the board of overseers declares that he never heard of the law until some Salvation Army officers came to his office.

But the Police Got Busy.

The Socialists had a street meeting Monday night in Scollay square, and a collection was received for the first time, simply because persons present wanted to make contributions. The police got busy right away. Two Socialists were summonsed.

The law does not limit the police interference to the soliciting of contributions. It even forbids their acceptance. The Salvationists, in other words, are forbidden even to accept voluntary contributions in the street except under such terms as Commissioner O'Meara cares to lay down. He can prevent it altogether, if he so desires—even the poor people's dinner contributions of Thanksgiving and Christmas days. And he had the law passed himself.

PROMISE TO SHOW COCAINE EVIL IS WIDESPREAD HERE

With the arraignment in the Municipal Court to-day of three drug clerks, charged with selling cocaine, the Watch and Ward Society stepped actively into a crusade which it is to wage against the "coke" evil in Boston.

This crusade is distinctly a work of the Watch and Ward Society, not of the police. It is considered doubtful by many if the arrests would have been made at all if the police had been left to handle the matter. The complainant in the case, as given on the warrants, is Agent J. Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society. After the court arraignment to-day Agent Davis said:

"This is the beginning of a big campaign to stamp out the cocaine-selling evil in Boston. We have evidence which, when brought out in court, will open the eyes of decent Bostonians to conditions they little realize have existed and do exist to-day in Boston."

Society Got Warrants.

The three drug clerks before Judge Sullivan to-day were Metcalf Adams, employed at Beach's drug store, at No. 38 Beach street, and Edward H. McGowan and Joseph Deloof, employed at Boyajian's drug store, at No. 66 Harrison avenue.

They were arrested on warrants served by police inspectors. The warrants, however, were sworn out by Agent Chase of the Watch and Ward.

In court the defendants, supplied with counsel, all pleaded not guilty and asked for continuances to August 13. This was granted. They were held in bonds of $200 apiece for appearance on that date.

The police made no objection to the continuance. From the general observation of police attitude, wherever the Watch and Ward Society is concerned, the police have only a perfunctory interest in the matter.

Agents of the society have reported that, free from any interference by the police, the cocaine evil has increased alarmingly. Pedlers distribute the "coke" in pool rooms and other South End resorts, and there are several places equipped with couches upon which the stupefied "fiends" recline after whiffing it.

BOSTON STIRRED BY REVELATIONS OF POLICE CONDITIONS

Boston is stirred to its depths by the AMERICAN'S revelations of the demoralization of its costly police service. It is the one topic in all circles. Hundreds who had been lulled into a false sense of security by the un-American methods of secrecy instituted by Commissioner O'Meara and Superintendent Pierce have been suddenly made to realize that crime problems press all around them, that their homes are imperilled by the roving burglar bands, that their little children are exposed to abominations and contaminations which can be suppressed instantly if police powers and Licensing Board will show the right spirit.

It would take a newspaper several times the size of this edition were the AMERICAN to print all the hundreds of letters sent in commendation of its demand for police reform. It is possible to give only a very few.

Here is a letter from A. T. Knapp of Boston's Eden Musee, for years at Nos. 727, 729, 731 Washington street, and now at Crescent Park. Writing under date of August 4 from Riverside, R. I., Mr. Knapp says:

Police Failed to Act.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your recent articles regarding the Boston police department are most timely. I trust you will keep at the police until they are made to realize that they are the servants of the people and not their masters. Last year, when I was doing business in Boston, I left a man in charge while I was away during July and August. Just before I returned he decamped with nearly $400 of my money. I immediately put the case in the hands of the police, giving them information which, had they used it, would have brought the criminal to the bar of justice. So far as I can ascertain nothing was done. Six months after, I was passing through New York city and in two hours' time I found the man had been in the employ of a company there, and just where I had told the Boston police to look for him. A communication to the New York police at the time, at an expense of two cents for postage, would have resulted in the arrest of the guilty party.

On my return to Boston, I again went to the department and gave them the information I had obtained, but up to this time nothing has been done. I believe the man is now in New York city or vicinity, and could be located by any policeman with the least bit of efficiency.

There is no doubt that too little attention is given to the more important cases and too much given to petty cases.

(Signed) A. T. KNAPP.

$2,000,000 for "Protection."

The AMERICAN suggests to Superintendent Pierce that this is a sufficiently specific charge to demand instant attention. If the statement made by Mr. Knapp are accurate a shake-up in the department where this complaint was filed twice is much needed. If this is a specimen of the way Mr. Pierce's so-called detectives go after criminals, the charge of Mr. Woods of the burglar insurance firm of Hinckley & Woods, that only a very small fraction of stolen goods is ever recovered through the police, is easily explained to the taxpayers who are asked to hand out more than $2,000,000 a year for this sort of "protection."

Other letters are given without comment. Read them and you will get some more light on what your fellow-citizens think of Superintendent O'Meara's administration:

Should Account for Power.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The police department of a great city like Boston is a machine of vast power and energy. It may be so conducted as to do great good; and it may be managed so as to cover and perpetuate great abuses and evils. The one head under whom it is placed is a more important person than the Mayor of Boston. Unless his power shall be properly checked and guarded and his acts as a public servant properly criticized, he must be a good man or else he will be a very dangerous one. Such an office should be filled by a man of common sense, urbane, dignified and courteous; a man of education, sagacity and character, whose presence and name carries an influence. Give to such a man the power, but even then require rigid accountability for its use!

The following declarations by Justice Gaynor anent the police department of the city of New York has the right ring: "There is no place under our system of government for an autocrat. For an official to set himself above the law and do as he likes—that is despotism. It is for officials to keep the written law, and not to trample on and defy it, and set at naught the rights of others."

The police force of Boston is an army, and the discipline should be strict. Every patrolman should be placed where he can best serve and protect the interests of the public welfare. Under the present system there is a great waste of efficient material. To cite but one instance: In the Public Library at Copley square two officers are stationed. They spend most of their time asleep in some quiet nook, when they should be on duty on the street.

An officer in uniform should have a clean mouth, and use proper language. The obligation rests on the police to be gentlemen and respect their uniforms. A man with a foul mouth should not be tolerated on the police force of Boston.

No public servant, be he President of the United States or a common patrolman, should be above criticism, or defy it, or take the attitude of the late Commodore Vanderbilt, who said, "The public be damned!"

(Signed) CITIZEN.

Could Stop All This.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your editorial on the police department was very good and true. Boston has about the worst low down men standing on the sidewalks and sitting in doorways.

If you doubt it just walk up and down Court street from Scollay to Bowdoin square and see how many policemen you can find during the afternoon. That section on a Sunday can't be equaled in any city in the United States for low women and drunkards.

Can't it be stopped? If the public had better service from our police commissioner it could.

(Signed) BRICKLAYER.

Depreciates Character.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

It is a pleasure to have someone show up the lax methods of the police force. I have been a taxpayer in East Boston for over thirty years and never found the water front in such an immoral condition as it is at present. You said these conditions depreciate the value of property, but it depreciates character much more. I have seen women hailing passersby on the street, either for beer or the price of it. I never drew the attention of the police at the time to it as I never could find any.

(Signed) A. T. W., a Taxpayer.

Conditions in West End.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I suggest that you send a reporter to the West End and have him walk from Irving street to West Cedar street, on Cambridge street, and see how many times he will be solicited by negro women. If he is not held up at least a dozen times in fifteen minutes I will pay for a good dinner for him.

Then go to the corner of Charles and Cambridge street and you will find the policemen talking of the events of the day. This has been going on for the last two or three years. Let the people know through your paper that the fault is not with the people of the West End, but with the police of that district.

(Signed) BERNARD F. SWEENEY.
22 Chambers street.

CLEVELAND BARS "CZAR" METHODS; POLICE CHIEF FAVORS PUBLICITY

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED TO COMMISSIONER O'MEARA.

Chief Kohler of the Cleveland police has issued the following general order:

If there is anything that can be given to the newspapers which is news, and which will be of interest to the public, and which will not materially hamper the department in its police work, it should be given to the newspapers by you or the Bertillon operator, or by one of the clerks in connection with our offices.

Any member of this department is at liberty to talk for publication, after the prosecutors and the court have heard any case he may be assigned to.

Copies of all general reports must, after being investigated and verified, be placed on the reporters' hook, unless specially requested by the person making the report that same be confidential, and officers in charge may give any additional facts that are not to be used as evidence.

This order is issued on account of various conflicting stories, misrepresentation and misunderstanding. I wish to make plain these facts and desire to continue them in effect until they are abused. Members of this department giving information should always consent to the use of their names so that all facts or information can be verified.

SOCIETY ON THE WING IN MID-SEASON

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT

Mrs. Edwin H. Sherwin of Boston entertained a large party yesterday at Wickford, R. I., where the Sherwins are spending the Summer. Among the guests were Mrs. William L. McKee of Commonwealth avenue, Miss Eleanor Clement of Brookline, Miss Gilmore of Boston, Mrs. William Berresford of England, and Miss Evelyn Beebe, the Misses Barnes, the Misses Wyatt, and Miss Julia Herreshoff of Bristol.

Professor Louis Allard of Harvard University gave a lecture to-day at the Summer residence of the Misses Loring at Pride's Crossing.

Mrs. Charles H. Colburn, a niece of Governor Draper, has sailed for Europe and will go direct to Paris, where she will be joined later in the season by her son-in-law, Baron de Marchienne, who is now in charge of the Belgian Legation at Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson sail for Europe to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Currier of Boston have gone to Phillips Lake in Maine for the remainder of the Summer.

The Rev. Maxwell Savage of Redlands, Cal., will conduct the morning services at Union Chapel in Manchester to-morrow forenoon. Mr. Savage is the son of the Rev. Minot J. Savage.

Andrew Robeson of Boston is one of the interesting society people to take part in the dramatic presentation of "The Liars" at Newport on August 21. The whole cast is made up of amateur players prominent at Newport.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by her sister and her youngest son, left Milan yesterday for Paris. Miss Ethel Roosevelt and Archie Roosevelt are traveling in the Italian lake region with the Italian ambassador to the United States, Baron Mayor des Planches, and his wife. They will join Mrs. Roosevelt in Paris at an early date. Mrs. Roosevelt and her children will return to her sister's villa at Porto Maurizo in the Autumn, where they will be joined by Mr. Roosevelt.

Edward B. Blake of Boston was married late in the week at Binghamton, N. Y., to Miss Abbie B. Baker, youngest daughter of Edward N. Baker of Binghamton.

Mrs. S. Parkman Blake of Brimmer street and her daughter, Miss Marian Blake, have been in Maine for a part of the Summer. They are in Manchester again and expect to remain till Autumn.

MRS. BESANT IS PLAGIARIST SAYS LEADER

That Mrs. Annie Besant has plagiarized Mme. Blavatsky, the founder of Theosophy, is the accusation of Mrs. Katherine Tingley, the head of the cult in this country, as expressed through her secretary, at her home in Newburyport to-day. Mrs. Tingley, who has been attacked by Mrs. Besant, charges that the English priestess has put forth some of Mme. Blavatsky's teachings without giving her credit.

The interview was given by Iverson Harris, Jr., Mrs. Tingley's secretary. It was given in the presence of Mrs. Tingley, Harris and Mrs. H. K. Richmond-Green, widow of Joseph Green, former manager of the Glendale Elastic Fabrics Company. Mrs. Richmond Green, who has been a student of Mme. Blavatsky since 1865, is a guest at the Tingley home.

Scores Miss Besant.

The official interview, which voices Mrs. Tingley's opinions, is as follows:

"It is a regrettable fact that the honest protest against Mrs. Annie Besant, published by Mr. J. H. Fussell, an old member of the Theosophical Society, which was founded by Mme. Blavatsky and later directed by William Q. Judge and Katherine Tingley, should be stated by Mrs. Besant as an attack upon herself.

"The reason that there are so many misconceptions in the public mind to-day as to the original society and its counterfeit is that Mrs. Besant calls herself a theosophist and her society theosophical, and she puts forth some of Mme. Blavatsky's teaching without giving her credit.

"One of the proofs that she is not following the path of the thorough theosophist is identified by her absurd attempts to be counted as a prophetess of the twentieth century, and also by the impractical way in which she pretends to aid humanity.

"There is no question but that there are many credulous, unthinking people, as well as wonder seekers and fanatics in America who have been startled through Mrs. Besant's absurd statements of the coming reincarnation of Christ in the West. Probably in consequence of this delusion there will be a larger attendance to her pay lectures and she will receive material gains therefrom.

"One who has followed Mrs. Besant's ambitious career would not be surprised if she came next year to America and stated that she herself was Christ."

MORE FREE TICKETS FOR WHITE CITY

To-morrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN will contain another list of famous free tickets to White City, Worcester, where the crowds go from all over central Massachusetts to hear the music, take the big, startling rides and enjoy the wonders of the big, wide terraces, the lagoon, mammoth theatre, and to promenade on the balcony overhanging the splendid Lake Quinsigamond. The tickets will save you forty-five cents. Two, worth twenty cents, are absolutely free, admitting you to the theatre and "Hy" Nichol's wonderful jungle, where the boats take you through wierd and wonderful places. The other five tickets are half-fare admissions to the balance of the park's great attractions.

FINE OFFENDING UNION MEMBERS $2

BROCKTON, Aug. 6.—Fines of $2 each are now being imposed by the union officials on members who are caught patronizing either of the three stores against which the Clerks' Union has been on strike for two months. To-day it was announced that sixty-five fines had been levied. The stores, which have refused to close Wednesday afternoon and evening to give the clerks a half holiday, are the three largest in the grocery and provision line in the city. The strikers are keeping a line of pickets about the places.

TEN MORE WRECK VICTIMS RESCUED

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Aug. 7.—After clinging to the rigging of the liner Maori, which was dashed on the rocks off Dulcher Point, for forty-eight hours while waves broke over them and their faces and hands were beaten raw by the stinging wind, ten members of the crew were rescued to-day. This brings the rescued up to twenty-one out of the original crew of fifty-three men.

ALLEGED GIRL BURGLAR MISSING

BROCKTON, Aug. 7.—Gracie Flagg, the fourteen-year-old girl who is charged with having broken into and entered the home of William Jones on Elm street, did not appear in the juvenile court to-day when her case was called, and it was declared defaulted. Her companion, Mildred E. Ritley, a co-defendant, was present with her mother. The police asked that her case be continued until August 16, until they had a chance to investigate the absence of Gracie Flagg.

CELEBRATES FIRST MASS TO-MORROW

The Rev. Father John W. Coveney will celebrate his first solemn high mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception to-morrow, the church where he acted as an altar boy as a youth. He was ordained a priest at Woodstock, Maryland, July 31, by Cardinal Gibbons. Father Coveney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Coveney, reside in Roxbury, as well as Miss Margaret, a sister, and three brothers, Joseph, Francis X. and James.

NEW SCIENTIFIC REMEDY
Snatches Health from Clutches of Disease

The world is familiar with the vain search for the long-sought-for "Elixir of Life." The discovery of this life-giving fluid has been the mad ambition of the world's greatest physicians and chemists since history began. What the science of yesterday failed to reveal modern research has at last brought to light. My discovery, the result of tireless effort and study, without the aid of any other remedy, has been successfully used in the treatment of the worst forms of chronic diseases. No matter what your complaint may be or how long standing, write at once for book telling all about this wonderful medical discovery and my methods of treatment, mailed absolutely without charge. This marvellous remedy restores lost vitality, tones the nerves to proper form, enriches the blood, destroys poisons therein, strengthens the brain cells and brings the human being back to his or her normal condition, and vigorous health is the result. I want men and women to respond, and, although I cannot meet you all face to face, I personally conduct my practice, keep a detailed record of every case, and at all times see that my patients receive the same treatment they would get if they were actually in my office. Write for free booklet to-day—read it carefully, and I know you will be convinced that I can help you. Dr. H. C. PADDACK, Ph. D., M. D., Grand avenue and 180th street, New York City.

CHOWDER RECIPES ARE POURING IN

WHEN John T. Hicks asked the BOSTON AMERICAN to help him get a good recipe for clam chowder—"like mother used to make"—he didn't realize how many different ways there are of doing the same thing, nor how the wisest way of finding out whatever you want to know is to ask the BOSTON AMERICAN to consult its readers. The women of all New England, with as much pride in their chowder as in their beans, have turned out to help Mr. Hicks in his quest. He has offered $5 for the best recipe, and the BOSTON AMERICAN has added $5 as a second prize. Here are some more of the recipes:

HOTEL CHEF'S WAY.

How does this strike you, Mr. Hicks? Cut one quart of potatoes in square pieces and put in pot with one quart of water, some pepper and salt and pinch of nutmeg; fry one-half pound of salt pork, cut in small square pieces, brown; add four onions to pork and fry until tender; add to potatoes in the pot and when cooked enough mix two tablespoonfuls of flour in little milk and add to ingredients in the pot; take two quarts of clams, clean and separate the belly of clams to put in last; chop up the other part of clams and put in pot and add three pints of good rich milk. Serve crackers with chowder, but don't put them in chowder until served as they swell up and make it like pudding.

JAMES REID.
Chef New Marlboro Hotel, Boston.

SUGAR IN THIS CHOWDER.

I have been preparing clam chowder for years and here is the way I do it: Wash two quarts of clams in two quarts of water, to which a spoonful of salt has been added, wash clean and drain in colender; put one and one-half cups of water in kettle and when boiling add clams and cook till they open; drain the clam water in a pitcher, shell clams, take off caps and cut off black heads; fry three good slices of pork to a crisp in kettle, add one and one-half cups of fresh water, slice in three good onions, boil five minutes, then slice in five good sized potatoes; add one-quarter teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon sugar; let boil ten minutes, then add clam water; let boil till potatoes are done, put in clams and one quart of milk in which five crackers have been soaked. Let come to a boil and serve.

South Hanover, Mass.

"DOWN EAST" CHOWDER.

To make a good "Down East" clam chowder, first cut some good fat salt pork in cubes and fry to a good brown in the kettle you are to make the chowder. Now have your potatoes parred and sliced and your clams cleaned, with the black heads cut off, and slit the rest to get out the sad; take out the black spot and only wash the clams enough to get the sand out. Now put in kettle with the pork a layer of potatoes and a good layer of clams, then salt and pepper, then another layer of potatoes and a layer of clams, salt and pepper, and so on till you have as much as you wish, then put in water enough just so you can see it and cook till the potatoes are soft or done. Now add the milk and crackers (after soaking crackers four minutes in the milk) and let come to a boil, and you have ready a regular old-fashioned coast of Maine clam chowder. Mother used to put in "doe-bags" that were great. Don't cut the clams.

MRS. F. H. GRASS.
Sharon, Mass.

FOLLOW DIRECTIONS CLOSELY.

Just follow directions closely and either of the two recipes I am enclosing will make chowder fit for the President.

RECIPE NO. 1.

Cut in dice one-third pound fat salt pork, slice two good-sized onions, put together in the kettle to be used for making chowder, and fry slowly to delicate brown; then add one quart peeled and sliced potatoes and water enough to cover, and cook slowly until potatoes are tender; one quart Ipswich clams, separate heads and necks from the bodies, pinch out and throw away the black speck from the bodies, chop heads and necks, not too fine, and with remainder of bodies add to chowder; add one quart good, sweet milk, bring to a scald and season with salt and pepper after being removed from fire.

RECIPE NO. 2.

Slice one-half pound fat salt pork, fry delicate brown, pare and slice three pints potatoes and three small onions, one quart good whole clams; put in kettle layer of potatoes, onions, clams and sprinkle over a little flour, pepper and salt and some of the fried pork; then another layer of potatoes, onions, clams, etc., until all are used, being careful not to put too much salt; pour over it some of the pork fat and water enough to cover, and cook slowly until potatoes are done; add a pint of rich milk, if desired, which I think is an improvement, but some like it best without.

MRS. S. McNEILL.
No. 45 Houghton street, Dorchester.

EASY TO UNDERSTAND.

Into a porcelain kettle slice six onions and fry to a slight brown with two slices of salt pork, one tablespoonful of butter; then add one pint of chopped clams; add enough water to claim broth to make three pints. Into this slice thin six medium-sized potatoes and boil till potatoes are cooked; add one-half quart of milk, one-half pint of cream; season with salt and pepper. Let come to a boil and serve.

MRS. LAURA GIARD.
No. 218 Southbridge street, Worcester.

GOOD, TRUE AND TRIED.

My clam chowder is good, true and tried. First, leave an iron kettle set on the stove and when hot, good and sizzling, put in three slices of nice salt pork, cut in dice, turn these round and round until quite brown and well tried out. Then take three nice, large, sound onions, and also slice these, and fry brown, being sure not to burn them; then add one pint of boiling water, and cook this until onions are real tender; then put in one pint of good fresh clams and let all cook about ten minutes, keeping the quantity at about a pint by adding a little water for what cooks away; now salt a little, or to taste, and also season with white pepper. Last thing put in one pint nice sweet milk and let just come to a boil, but not boil, remove from the fire and eat red hot, placing in your serving dish a half dozen fresh Boston crackers.

BROOKFIELD MAN AN ARMY FRAUD

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—Arrested here Thursday under the name of "Major Anderson, U. S. A.," and later declared to be Lieutenant Harry King, a man wearing an army officer's uniform and having many papers in his possession purporting to show he was Lieutenant King, confesed in jail to-day that he was Thomas E. Heaney, formerly a hotel clerk in Brookfield, Mass. Heaney declared that for five years he had been posing as Lieutenant King, son of Horatio King, and that he had been received in many cities without question under that name. The real Lieutenant Harry King is in the Philippines.

LA LOIE WILL MAKE BOSTON DANCING MAD

By CHARLES HENRY MELTZER.
Special Correspondent Boston American.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—All Europe is dancing mad, and Loie Fuller and her company of "national dancers," who are to appear at the Metropolitan, New York, and the Boston Opera House, will try to infuse something of the same madness into the American blood.

I have been seeing Loie Fuller at close range of late here in Paris—watching her rehearse her wonderful pupils, and helping her, in a small way, to compose some of the dances which she will present on her approaching tour.

From her armchair in a room at her hotel—and sometimes even from a sick bed, for weeks past, ever, indeed, since her return from America, she has been directing the rehearsals of her pupils, giving them new fancies, new ideas to work out in pantomime, suggesting new subjects to her collaborators and helping by her own example in the "interpretation" of the music which inspires these entertainments of hers.

There are rhythms and rhymes in the "dances" which she devises as accompaniments to the works of Gluck, Mozart, Grieg or Massenet.

The meaning which she attaches to the music, and which she works out with her followers, may be miles away from anything the composers are supposed to have had in their minds when they wrote it. That does not make her entertainment less interesting. To-day, for instance, with an occasional hint from "La Loie" and aided and abetted by Rita Sacchetto, the Viennese-Italian star, we lent meanings to the "Peer Gynt" score of Grieg which would possibly have amazed that composer, though I rather think that Ibsen would have approved them. For, in a way, they were due to his inspiration, even if they had not the remotest connection with his drama.

Sometimes, when the weather is less rheumatic than it has been this Summer, the rehearsals of the "Natural Dancers" will take place in an old church not far from the "Bon Marche," a church once owned and used by one of the ejected monkish brotherhoods. Moreover, as if that was not sufficiently startling, six priests stand ready, on short notice, to assist "La Loie" in her work. To them it seems, as it has seemed to others, that art—whether in the form of painting, sculpture, music or dancing—may serve noble ends.

PASTORS HAVE LIVE TOPICS FOR SERMONS

At the Clarendon Street Baptist church Rev. James A. Francis will preach at both morning and evening services. The evening meeting will be held on the church steps.

Rev. Addison Moore of Jersey City will preach at both services at the Dudley Street Baptist Church. His topics will be "The Divine Pursuit" and "Teachers in School Life."

Rev. O. P. Gifford will preach at both the morning and evening services at the First Baptist church.

At the Ruggles Street Baptist church Rev. C. C. Earle will preach at both services.

"Does it Pay to Pray?" will be the morning topic of Rev. P. S. Henson at Tremont Temple. His evening subject will be "The Worth of a Man." The Lotus quartet will sing at both services.

"The Power of God" will be the topic of Rev. Joseph E. Perry at the morning service at the Warren Avenue Baptist church. In the evening Rev. D. A. McLeod will preach on "Ideal Life."

Rev. Allen E. Cross will preach at the morning service at the Old South Church. At the Hope Chapel in the evening, Rev. Samuel W. Erwin will preach.

At the Park Street Congregational church, Rev. C. D. Kellogg of Sandy Hill, N. Y., will preach at both services.

Rev. A. F. Covell of Fitchburg will preach at both services at the Shawmut Congregational Church.

"The One Justifiable War" will be the topic of Rev. Frederick N. Rutan at the morning service at the Union Congregational Church.

Rev. E. T. Sullivan of Newton Centre will preach at Trinity Church.

Rev. F. P. Parkin of the Philadelphia Conference will preach at both services at People's Temple.

The third of the special Summer series the religious services, under the auspices of the American Unitarian Association and the Benevolent Fraternity of Churches, will be held Sunday afternoon at the Old South Meeting House. The meeting will be in charge of C. W. Casson, and the speaker will be Dr. Thomas R. Slicer of All Souls' Church, New York city.

RIVALRY FOR BARN DANCE PRIZES

Preparations for the annual barn dance of Summer saunterers at Hough's Neck indicates that this year's event will surpass all others in the past. The dance will take place on Friday evening, August 20, and it is expected that 1,200 will attend. The march will be led by ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and Miss Theresa Kilroy. Suitable prizes will be offered. Already there is considerable rivalry over the prizes to be awarded in connection with the event.

DRAPER'S SON MAKES ATTACK COMPLAINT

BRIDGTON, Me., Aug. 7.—On complaint of Fred W. Draper of Milford, Mass., Judge William F. Jones of the Norway Municipal Court issued a warrant for the arrest of John C. Dawson, Jr., of Philadelphia, a counselor in a boys' camp in Harrison, for alleged assault on Mr. Draper's son Randolph by Dawson. The warrant was delivered to Sheriff William A. Bicknell of Norway, but has not yet been served. The alleged assault took place in Oxford county, but the camp is in Cumberland county.

BOSTON PRIEST HONORED.

The Rev. Father Alphonso Parziale, O. F. M., formerly connected with the Church of St. Leonard of Port Maurice in the North End, and for the last three years pastor of a large parish in Pittsburg, has been appointed by the provincial of the Franciscan Order, one of the six definitors who meet soon to choose the guardians of the churches under that order for the next year.

3,000 GET FRESH AIR.

Fully three thousand persons have so far this Summer been sent on daily excursions or for a rest in the country by the "country week" committee of the Federated Jewish Charities. These beneficiaries are sickly or exhausted mothers and children. The committee consists of Mrs. G. J. Spitz and Mrs. A. C. Ratchesky, who serve under Max Mitchell as superintendent. Mr. Mitchell says that he is perfectly satisfied with the results that have been accomplished.

GIRL TYPIST WHO WON SUCCESS AND IS NOW A LAWYER

Miss Caroline Leveen.

Miss Caroline Leveen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pezer Leveen, of No. 51 Revere street, Boston, one of the two women who were successful in passing the Massachusetts Bar Association, which entitles them to practice law in this State, is to-day receiving the congratulations of her friends.

"I am very happy to know that at last I am a full-fledged lawyer, invested with authority to argue cases in the courts of this State," said Miss Leveen to-day.

"Success is the goal I strived for, and now I'm safe from mental worry. To the one who would be an attorney I would say, concentrate your mind on what you do; never hesitate or give up, and keep 'plugging.'"

Miss Leveen attended the Chelsea grammar and high schools. Later she entered the Boston University Law School, taking a three-year course. For the past year or more she has been working as stenographer for a State street lawyer.

WALL STREET NEWS FOR THE INVESTORS

WALL STREET, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The statement made on the highest authority that large interests in Steel intend to hold the common sock until it crosses the preferred in price, may not induce many persons to buy Steel Common at the prevailing level, but it cannot fail to strengthen the expectation that Wall Street will witness within the next year or so one of the greatest bill campaigns in its history.

Very much excitement is caused by a semi-official report from Steel Trust headquarters that the corporation is producing pig iron at the rate of 13,000,000 tons a year. This is 92 per cent. of the total capacity of the trust, and is equal to 103 per cent. of the total capacity of the trust in the boom year of 1907. The record production of 11,600,000 tons was in 1906. These figures from the Steel Trust explain the heavy buying of the stock by insiders. The prices promised by Morgan followers, promised exclusively in this column a few days ago, now seem conservative.

Smelters is helped, of course, by the advance of National Lead, which has gone to record prices, dragging the parent stock along. The strong argument heard in favor of lead is that the metal is entirely consumed when put into use in most instances, thereby differing from copper, which is never destroyed by use. Hocking Coal & Iron made a new record, but surprised nobody because it has the habit. Its record is made in expectation of striking oil. If it strikes gold instead of oil it will make still more records. Nobody believes in Hocking Coal & Iron, but for that very reason the advance may be on merits.

Advance of St. Paul is most impressive because the company is carrying now for dividend purposes $100,000,000 more of stock than it did six months ago. The new extension to the Pacific is said to be more than paying its way, which is something remarkable for a new railroad. In that, however, the St. Paul is only doing the same as all other railroads of the Northwest. Great Northern and Northern Pacific have the promise of record traffic this year. They cannot get enough men to harvest the enormous crops. St. Paul is bought very heavily in Chicago, where information on the property is usually fairly accurate. La Salle street heard there are to be valuable "rights." The story of a bond issue was reiterated.

American Car & Foundry is so well supplied with orders that at the next meeting of the directors the stock will be restored to a 4 per cent. basis. Among equipment companies the American Locomotive Company has been the most conservative. The concern accumulated a surplus for three years before the directing board decided to give something to the common stock. This body was the first to reduce dividends during the storm and stress period. It argues well for the industrial situation that the directorate is practically unanimous in its intention to put the common stock back on a 5 per cent. basis.

Another peculiar development is the discovery that the copper metal market has been cleaned up for everything under 15¼ cents a pound. As a result of this, the Copper Producers' Association will report a considerable reduction in surplus. This report must be accepted with suspicion, since the discovery was made that a pool of insiders has been taking copper metal for speculation. There is no doubt, however, that the copper metal market is somewhat better. The insiders of the Copper Trust are whispering about the Street that they intend to start a bull campaign in Amalgamated within a few days. The short interest in that stock is very large. Strength of the porphyry coppers will help Amalgamated immensely, as the impression has gone abroad that the trust intends to take in some of these low cost producers.

One of the most notable features is an advance in Pullman to 200, based entirely on the company's solid record of prosperity, no picturesque rumors of rights or extraordinary developments entering into the case. The car building plant of the Pullman Company is working to its fullest capacity, the passenger car department has orders booked for over a year ahead and the freight car department has recently received a large amount of business. In the fiscal year ended July 31 a substantial surplus was shown after payment of the dividends notwithstanding that the year was a bad one for the manufacturers of equipment and for passenger travel, and there is every prospect that the year now entered upon will be the best in the company's history.

POPE BLESSES BOY WINNER OF AMERICAN TOUR

ROME, Aug. 7.—Silvio Minoli, a schoolboy, who is enjoying a special trip to this country as the guest of the New York American, was granted an audience to-day by the Pontiff Pope Pius X. With him was his teacher, Miss Emma F. Carney of New York, whom he selected as his guardian and companion on the trip.

The Pope was well and in a happy frame of mind, and when he was informed that the little fellow who was before him had been chosen from among many thousands of American boys by a popular vote he was greatly pleased.

The pontiff, when young Minoli came before him, placed his hands caressingly upon the boy's head and exclaimed:

"Well Done, American."

"Bravo, Americano. Well done, American."

To the surprise and delight of the pontiff young Minoli made a properly reverential response in the Italian language. The Pope, smiling pleasantly, then engaged the New York lad in conversation in his native tongue. The little fellow, though somewhat awed and embarrassed, answered fluently and intelligently.

The Pontiff asked Silvio how he came to be in Italy, if, as he said, he was merely a public school boy and the son of parents who were not above the average in riches. The boy told him that the New York American had sent him here. He had been one of the victors in a contest; an election had resulted in his being granted the privilege of going where he chose, with his teacher as guardian.

Blessed by Pope.

Pius X. listened with interest and then, informally (which is by no means usual) continued to chat with the little Italian-American, praised him for getting a place of honor in such a great city as New York, and finally said a few words about the generosity of the New York American in sending such a boy to the land of his forefathers.

BEAUTIFUL SKIN FREE—Mme. Cavallieri will tell in the SUNDAY AMERICAN how every woman can make her skin beautiful.

DEVONSHIRE ST. PROPERTY IN NEW HANDS

The most important sales of the week in the realty field were reported to-day, a number of very valuable properties in the city having changed hands.

In the business district, the Perkins Institution for the Blind has conveyed to William H. Tucker, title passing through Joseph G. Bishop, the property at Nos. 288 and 290 Devonshire street, near Summer street. The estate comprises a four-story granite front brick building and 2,250 square feet of land, all assessed for $69,800, of which $51,800 is on the land. The purchase was made for investment.

Emily M. Niles has sold to Madeline P. Bakewell the four-story, stone, swell-front, brick house, brick stable and 3,900 square feet of land at No. 318 Beacon street, near Fairfield street, Back Bay. The property is assessed on a total valuation of $64,000, of which $33,100 is on the land.

The property at No. 68 Pemberton square, near Somerset street, comprising a 4½-story brick building, now used for office purposes, and 1476 square feet of land have been sold by Stephen C. Murch to George N. Whipple. The estate is taxed on a total of $28,000, of which $22,100 is on the land.

The trustees of the Fenway Land Company have sold to Benjamin Levine lots numbered 39 to 42 (inclusive) on the northerly side of Hemenway street, adjoining the Fenway, and containing a total area of 7,000 square feet. These lots abut other property of the grantee, who is to immediately erect a large apartment house. Joseph Balch, No. 53 State street, was the broker in the transaction. The lots are assessed for $13,200, or $1.90 a square foot.

In the South End the four-story and basement brick house and 2711 square feet of land at No. 533 Massachusetts avenue, near Tremont street, have been sold by Sadie A. Ripley to Margaret Wood. The estate is assessed on a total valuation of $11,000, of which $6100 is on the land.

Title to the estate at No. 9, and the rear of that number, Hudson street, near Beach street, South End, has passed from Minnie E. Kee to Simon J. Gerrior, through Helen F. Jacobi. It consists of a 2½-story brick house and 1,520 square feet of land, all assessed for $8,900, of which $5,800 is on the land.

Another South End property sold is that at No. 40 Porter street, near Corning street, comprising a four-story, swell-front, brick house and 970 square feet of land, assessed for a total of $5,100, of which $1,900 is on the land. Henry B. Edes, trustee, conveyed to John L. Lochead.

In Dorchester, Jeremiah W. O'Brien has sold to Herman S. Protze, the frame house and 5,400 square feet of land at No. 108 Magnolia street, near Bird street. The property is taxed for a total of $8,200, of which $2,200 is on the land.

George H. Smith has sold to Katie Sherman, title passing through Solomon Stiller, the frame house and 2569 square feet of land at Nos. 51-53 Dewey street, near Howard avenue, Dorchester. This estate is assessed for a total of $6,400. The land is taxed for $900.

Another property in the same suburb sold is that at No. 80 Landhurst street, near Allston street, comprising a frame house and 5958 square feet of land, which has been conveyed by William A. Root et ux., to Proctor Fisher. The estate is assessed on a total valuation of $6,100, of which $2,100 is on the land.

Charles Toye has sold to Daniel M. Herlihy a frame house and a lot of land, containing about 4,000 square feet and assessed for $1,600, on Browning avenue, near the corner of Bernard street, Dorchester. The house, being new, is not yet assessed.

Otis A. Shepard has sold to Riley G. Crosby a lot of land, containing 2,258 square feet of land, and taxed for $900, at the corner of Wrentham and Florida streets, Dorchester.

Gideon L. Davidson has sold to John G. Reinhardt a frame house and 5,087 square feet of land at the corner of Paisley Park and Bourneside street, Dorchester. The land is rated for $1,500, but the house, being new, is not yet assessed.

In Roxbury, Catherine F. McGlynn has sold to Lucy W. Whittemore et al., trustees, the three story brick house and 4,558 square feet of land at No. 29 Millmont street, near Lambert avenue. The property is assessed for a total of $1,600, of which $2,300 is on the land.

George Sneirson et ux. have sold to Thomas A. Cassidy the frame house and store at Nos. 185-187 Bennington street, corner of Paris street, East Boston. This property is assessed for a total of $4,500, of which $700 is on the 1,400 square feet of land.

LEXINGTON PARK BIG ATTRACTIONS

The rare and extraordinary Nyl Ghau is one of the exhibits in Benson's big menagerie in Lexington Park. These animals are so scarce that African huntsmen very rarely catch a glimpse of the fleet-footed animal. With the sacred cow of India, the Western bison and calf and 160 other large and small biped and quadrupeds, the Nyl Ghau is pastured in a small wired inclosure in plain view of all visitors. Lexington Park contains a multitude of wonderful free attractions. Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will publish another free ticket of admission to Lexington Park.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

LOCAL STOCKS AGAIN STRONG

STATE STREET, Aug. 7.—Noon.—Local stocks were again strong to-day with considerable animation for a Saturday half-holiday. Strength came out in new spots, those of the Amster group being prominent. Arizona Commercial rose 1½ points to 45¾ and Boston & Corbin sold up to above 21. Manipulation was apparent in both cases, but these stocks have been laggards since President Amster is in Europe.

Lake Copper was given another upward whirl, carrying it to 32½ without any set-back, while North Lake was also active up to 11½. North Butte was heavy and neglected at around 58. Amalgamated sold up to 86½, and looked strong at that price.

Steel common continued on its upward course, and although it did not quite reach the New York equivalent, it sold to 77¼. Orders from New York caused a strength in American Telephone, which touched 143. This company's business is keeping pace with the general business situation. Sugar was also buoyant and rose to 133.

Curb trading was active in spots, and the tone of the whole list there was strong. Active specialties were Davis Daly and Cactus, the latter advancing to 4⅛. Rhode Island Coal was strong, but less active, and Bay State Gas was also strong and active.

STOCKS MAKE HIGH RECORDS

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Numerous high records were made in Wall street to-day. Of most importance were those in Union Pacific, St. Paul, Steel, Sloss-Sheffield, Reading and Atchison. The advances were made because of the splendid crop reports. The government will issue a report on corn Monday that is expected to indicate a crop of 3,200,000,000 bushels.

The wheat market was weak in Chicago, declining nearly one cent in the early trading. Patten and Armour announced themselves on the grain market.

London was buoyant in the American department.

A selling movement developed in the last hour of trading which gathered sufficient headway at the close to carry prices down on an average of about a point. This was due to advance information in regard to the bank statement, which showed a loss in cash of $7,800,000. The surplus reserve was reduced more than $6,000,000, while loans were increased $10,000,000.

Steel common was a notable exception, continuing in persistent demand and closing but slightly under its high record price.

LEAKY VALVE STOPS BALLOON FLIGHT

WINSTED, Ct., Aug. 7.—Aroused by loud cackling of her hens, and thinking a fox was after them, Miss Sadie Bigelow of Norfolk rushed out doors at 6:55 a. m. to-day and saw a large balloon, the basket of which contained Sheldon Whitehouse and his brother of New York, and William Van Sleet, pilot, going southeast. The aeronauts waved to the girl and one of them asked her to telephone to Pittsfield, from which point the aircraft started about daybreak in an attempt to break the long-distance flight from that city of 165 miles. The balloon landed at East Litchfield, a leaky tap valve causing it to descend.

July a Splendid Month for the Boston American

During July the American gained in advertising over July 1908 the splendid total of 216 1-4 columns.

Again this was by far the greatest gain of any Boston newspaper, being nearly double the next best gain for the month.

All departments shared in the increase—local, foreign and classified.

The American is giving advertisers the most for their money—it is the one best buy.

Supreme as the American is in the evening and Sunday field in Boston, advertisers naturally look to it more and more to reach the homes—to reach the women and men of the city at the time they have the most leisure for reading and consequently for the careful going over of the advertisements.

It is another demonstration of the vital fact of "home-going" circulation, as against "home-leaving" circulation.

Advertising follows the line of greatest results just as naturally as water flows down hill—and that is why surely, steadily and inevitably the American is taking its rightful place as Boston's greatest advertising medium. It is coming into its own.

DOVES LOOKING FOR TROUBLE IN PIRATES' CAMP

BOSTON SPORTS WILL TRAVEL ON A SPECIAL TO SEE KETCHEL BOUT

Joe Woodman, manager of the Boston tar baby, Sam Langford, arrived in Boston this morning, from New York, where he has been completing arrangements for the bout between his scrapper and Stan. Ketchel, which will be pulled off at the Fairmount Club, New York city, on the night of Friday, Sept. 3, instead of Labor Day, as originally planned.

A special train will leave Boston on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and will arrive in time for the bout that evening. The train will come back to Boston immediately after the bout has been decided. That is just to the liking of the 300 or more sports of this city, who will go to see the fight, for they are anxious to see the Boston colored walloper mix with the youngster from Kewanee, Ill., who holds the middleweight title.

Manager Woodman reports that the seat sale for the bout is the largest on record for years in New York City, and he says that fully a week before the day for the fight there will not be a seat obtainable. The prices to the mill are $10, $20, $30 and $35 for box seats.

Many orders for boxes have already been received. John W. Gates has purchased two boxes and Dave Johnson, owner of the well known sprinter, Roseben, and many other horses, has ordered three.

Manager Woodman said this morning, "I haven't the slightest doubt hat the seat sale of this bout will exceed that of the Philadelphia Jack O'Brien-Ketchel, which was certainly a large one. Half the house is gone already and the rest is going like hot cakes."

"Sam is up at Northboro, Mass., getting in trim for the contest by mowing and pitching hay and doing all sorts of garden work. Digging potatoes seems to be as much in his line as delivering wallops and I don't need to mention his ability along those lines. He will start active training next Monday and will keep right on until the time for the go."

The always busy Willus Britt and his scrapping kid, Ketchel, are on their way to New York now are expected to arrive Tuesday. Ketch will probably train in one of the clubs near New York.

Willus won't have to bring his boxer in to New York dressed in his cowboy uniform, as he did once, to attract attention, for all New York is ready to welcome the middleweight champ. He is a great favorite with the boxing public of the big town and will be well backed by his admirers when he faces the Boston tar baby.

Notes of the Red Sox Game

The Red Sox got off winging. Three hits and two errors scored three runs in the first game .

The White Stockings looked like they might score in the third session as Altizer binged a single to second base and Parent beat out a teasing bounder. Arellanes tightened up, though, and Isbell's best was a high fly to Niles.

* * *

The Red Sox cinched the affair in the third round by slipping three more men around the circuit. Three hits and Owen's bad throw to third to catch Doc Gessler stealing did the work.

Billy Sullivan used two complete batteries in the contest. Burns and Owens started in, but Sutor and Payne relieved them after the third session had been finished.

* * *

In the third inning Stahl fanned and the third strike hit Owen's foot and Stahl hiked for first. Owens whipped the ball to first and Davis made a swell one-hand catch of the wide throw.

* * *

Isbell, playing in center field in place of Doc White, made a peachy running catch off Carrigan in the fourth session robbing Bill of a sure triple.

At the start of the Red Sox half of the seventh, Reilly went to second in place of Atz.

Arellanes' pass to Davis in the seventh was the first of the game.

In the seventh Hooper batted for Speaker and then finished the game in centre field. Gardner took Wagner's place at shortstop.

French with the aid of a good lead scored all the way from first on Carrigan's short Texas Leaguer behind second base in the eighth spasm.

The Red Sox could easily have won the game had not the Comiskey bunch kicked in with the errors, for they battered in enough runs to win.

While there was a lot of scoring by the Red Sox and a good number of long drives, the fans didn't seem to enjoy the game to any great extent. The runs came so easily that there was little pleasure in seeing the men run around the bases.

* * *

Doc Gessler still roams over the .300 mark in his hitting. He got a double and a single yesterday which sent him up three points. Doc is there with the wallop when not enjoying too high a life.

* * *

In only two innings did the Red Sox go out in order. This was the case with the Chicago on four occasions.

* * *

The Red Sox got more hits off Burns during the three innings that he worked than they did off Sutor during the five that he officiated.

Arellanes was the only Red Stocking who didn't get at least one safe hit. Stahl, Carrigan and Arellanes were the only men who didn't score a run.

Jake Atz scored the White Sox's one run. Altizer lead with the willow with a double and a single.

Arellanes pitched a grand game, and but for Carrigan's passed ball would have had a shutout. This is the second time that errors or misplays have robbed him of shutouts. He kept the five hits he allowed well scattered and the white shinned warriors never had a lookin at the winning end. Frank also gave but one base on balls.

* * *

Every time the Red Legs got as many as two hits in any one inning they scored at least one run.

Jennings Has New System

You can't beat Hughie Jennings's system.

Not that his knowledge of baseball is superior to that of other managers; not that the Tigers play better baseball than the other teams, but you can't just beat the Jennings system.

The sorrel-topped manager of the Tigers knows the weakness of his men and he plays it for all it is worth. Judging from the high percentage of the Detroit crowd the system seldom fails.

Everybody knows the Tigers have won two American League pennants. Everybody knows that the Detroiters have shared in the receipts of two world's series. Everybody knows that the great weakness of mankind is love of money.

Hughie knows it. If the Tigers are behind, Jennings never fails to drop a hint about "You'll have to get busy, boys, if you expect to get some of that coin again next October.

Of course, some of the players are off their stride at bat at times. The Tigers are only human in this respect and are no exception to the rule. It is for the benefit of these men that Hughie always carries a few $5 and $10 bills with him to the ball park every day.

The other day Jennings forgot his money. The game went nine innings without a decision. It ran into ten and eleven rounds with neither team being returned a victor.

Hughie became desperate. He scanned the crowd in the grandstand and finally spied the face of a Detroit travelling man. Hughie beckoned him, told him his tale of woe and asked for the loan of a ten spot. Of course the Tiger adherent came across. In the twelfth Cobb got on first, took second on a sacrifice and third on an out. Germany Schaefer picked up his bat. Jennings was coaching on the first base line. The Dutchman had already cracked out three hits. He looked towards first base. He saw Jennings balancing on one leg.

What else was it that Germany saw? It was something green. No, it wasn't grass. Germany didn't have to look a second time. He knew it was a greenback, one of several hundred of the kind he had received at the close of the 1907 season and again last October.

The blood leaped through his veins at a quickened pace. His eye brightened. Rhoades let fly with the ball. Crack—Germany's bat met the ball fair and square. The ball shot over second base for Schaefer's fourth hit of the game. Cobb trotted home with the winning run of the game.

The sight of the greenback had worked like a tonic on the man who had been hitting the ball poorer than any other Tiger. It had the effect that Jennings figured it would.

Throw a piece of meat to a starving dog and watch how soon he becomes active. That's the way with the Tigers. They have had the peaches and cream of baseball served to them two years in succession. They liked the taste of it, and the sight of a greenback will make their tongues hang out and long for more.

BROCKTON HORSES IN A MATCH RACE

BROCKTON, Aug. 7.—Local horsemen are endeavoring to arrange a match between Lester Howard's Livery Boy and Fred W. McLauthlen's Sunshines, best two in three, mile heats, at the Brockton fair grounds. Both seem willing to race, and in all probability there will be a meeting in the near future of those interested and something fixed up.

The MacDougall youngsters, Do All, McCory and a two-year-old filly, have arrived from Detroit, Mich., in charge of two grooms for the Lasell stable. The colts will remain under the supervision of A. Johnson until the Readville Grand Circuit meeting. Mr. Johnson has received a telegram from Mr. Lasell stating that his gray horse, Judge Lee, showed fine in the $10,000 trotting stake, when he recently won second money.

Because of the disagreeable weather there were no races held on the Morse avenue speedway Thursday afternoon, and there will be no races held there to-day for the reason that a large delegation from the Brockton Driving Club will attend the meet of the Old Colony Club at South Weymouth.

AUTREY TO JOIN DOVES IN WEST

Chick Autrey has been recalled from Lynn by President Dovey and Fred Stem will be sent to Manager Billy Hamilton to replace him. Hamilton will not part with Autrey until Stem reports to Lynn, so it is likely that Beck will again play the first bag for the Doves for the next few days.

Autrey was secured by the Boston club from Cincinnati by the waiver route while the Doves were on their first Western trip and was sent to Lynn a short while after, Manager Hamilton agreeing to let President Dovey have his pick of the Lynn club at the end of the season.

KEYES AND SMITH TO OPEN BOXING SEASON

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Sammy Smith and Bert Keyes, the two clever New York lightweights, are going to furnish some real entertainment for the denizens of Saratoga Springs and the racing folk gathered there for the month at Convention Hall to-night. The pair will swap punches for ten rounds, or at least they are scheduled to box ten rounds. However, both are confident the bout will not go the distance, and each is confident of winning.

'KNOCKOUT' BROWN TO MEET WILLIE JONES

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—"Knockout" Brown, the East Side wallop wonder, has been matched to meet Willie Jones, the Brooklyn bantamweight, for the star bout at the Olympic Athletic Club, Monday night. This will be Jones's first appearance this year in New York, and he has just returned from a successful Southern trip, where he defeated the best bantamweights. This ought to prove a great mill, as Jones never stops fighting from the tap of the gong.

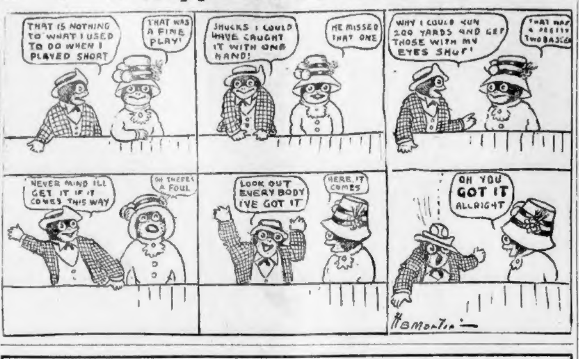
GIANTS MAY TRADE TENNEY TO PIRATES

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7.—It has developed here that Manager McGraw of the Giants is dealing with the Pittsburg club for a trade of Fred Tenney for a Pirate outfielder and another good man. The Pittsburg club has long wanted Tenney to cover the weakest corner of their infield, and McGraw could use a good outfielder. The manager of the Giants declined to discuss the report.

GOES MILE A MINUTE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Louis Chevrolet, the French chauffeur, fell short by a few seconds of equaling the world's record for fifty miles over a circular track at Fort Erie. He raced F. S. Lorimer, Barney Oldfield not starting. The time was 52m. 10 1-5s. Chevrolet was forced to stop in the fortieth mile to change a tire, losing a minute and a half.

It Happened in Birdland



THAT IS NOTHING TO WHAT I USED TO DO WHEN I PLAYED SHORT
THAT WAS A FINE PLAY!
SHUCKS! I COULD HAVE CAUGHT IT WITH ONE HAND!
HE MISSED THAT ONE
WHY! I COULD RUN 200 YARDS AND GET THOSE WITH MY EYES SHUT!
THAT WAS A PRETTY TWO BASE
NEVER MIND I'LL GET IT IF IT COMES THIS WAY
OH THERE'S A FOUL
LOOK OUT EVERY BODY I'VE GOT IT
HERE IT COMES
OH YOU GOT IT ALLRIGHT

Baseball News and Notes

Nick Altrock now is being mentioned as a possibility for substitute first baseman of the Minneapolis team.

The Shreveport, La., team has sold $11,500 worth of players this year. That is about as much as the gate receipts for a year.

Pittsburg is said to have paid $4,000 for Dick Rudolph of the Toronto team. One-half of this was cash and the remainder to be paid when the pitcher made good.

* * *

If Mike Donlin and Mabel Hite are looking for the subject of a new vaudeville sketch, why not label it "Making a Manager of Mique."

* * *

The Phillies will not lack managerial timber next year. Martel, who managed Steubenville, and Pitcher Arch Osborn, manager of East Liverpool, already are under contract.

* * *

A. Vincent Campbell, the youngster who traveled southward with the Cubs last year and who was destined as a Cub receiver, has been purchased by the Pirates. Clarke got him from the Aberdeen club of the Northwestern League.

The owners of the Montreal club finally have their wish. They have been after Bumpus Jones, formerly with the Detroit club, for these many months. Jennings turned the pitcher over to the Indianapolis team of the American Association. Carr then sent Bumpus to Montreal.

The Southerners say that Pitcher Booler, purchased from the Shreveport team by the Cleveland Naps, looks like Theodore Brietenstein. If he can pitch like "Briet" Lajoie will be satisfied.

Matty McIntyre is planning to take the Detroit club, with the exception of Tyrus Cobb, to Cuba immediately after the season is over for a Winter trip.

Connie Mack believes he has another great pitcher for the Athletics in John Lively of the Montgomery club. This youngster was the first man in the Southern League to pitch a no-hit no-run game. The Little Rock athletes were his victims. They were shut out, 3 to 0.

Monte Cross has received his walking papers from Indianapolis. Looks like there should be a few good days of baseball left in the former Athletic shortstop.

It has leaked out that Bobby Wallace and Griggs had a row in the St. Louis clubhouse and that the recruit put the veteran down for the count. That's one way of winning pennants—the cellar.

Pinch hitters come high nowadays. Smiling Al Orth is said to be drawing $400 a month for sitting on the bench and occasionally taking a wallop at the sphere.

Not all managers believe in the elaborate warm up that pitchers indulge in these days is necessary. They like to recall Cy Young's old way of warming up. He rolled the ball to the catcher, who rolled it back, and the great pitcher was all set.

* * *

Joe Laughlin, the Chicago boy, who refused to report to Spokane because it was too far from this city, has been located. The Spokane officials say that Laughlin played independent ball until two weeks ago when he joined the Danville Club of the Virginia League. Now Spokane is after him.

* * *

There is a persistent rumor in the cities of the American Association that George Tebeau has gone back on Joe O'Brien and that at a meeting held in St. Louis by representatives of Toledo, Columbus, Indianapolis, Louisville and Kansas City it was decided that O'Brien should be retired at the next annual meeting of the league.

GOLF GOSSIP NEWS OF THE LINKS

The Allston Golf Club certainly did have tough luck with its open tournament this year but it was no exception to the rule, for it is very seldom that Allston ever plans an open tournament without having a downpour on the day set for the meeting. Twenty-two players went around the course the first day, but the sheets of rain and the wet course spoiled the chance for low scoring and made a laughable exhibition of nerve.

Another four-ball match of great interest has been arranged for, at the Hackensack Golf Club, to be played on Wednesday, October 6th. The contestants will be two amateurs and two professionals, all of great repute, namely, Walter J. Travis of Garden City with Tom Vardon, England, as a partner, against Findlay S. Douglass, Nassau Country Club, and Alleck Smith, who hails from the Wykagyl Country Club.

Allston still has posted in the vestibule of the clubhouse the results of the team match against Brockton. The Allston team not only won every match but all the scores were under 80. Lockwood made the record of the course, at a 64, while Frank Hoyt, who had shortly before made a 66, negotiated a 70. The other scores were as follows: F. I. Jaquith, 75; C. E. Eaton, 79; W. F. Poole, 75; T. A. Ashley, 79.

Robert C. Watson, secretary of the United States Golf Association, has sent out broad cast the program for the national amateur championship which is going to be held at the Wheaton Golf course the week beginning September 6th. The conditions governing the contest are the same as last year, that is 18 holes of a thirty-six hole qualifying round to be played the first day with the best sixty-four scores to continue in the second eighteen holes. Tuesday morning the leading thirty-two scores for the two rounds will meet in match play, eighteen holes. The remaining rounds will be played off at thirty-six holes.

The side matches which pop up now and then between the well known professionals of the local clubs are watched with a great deal of interest. A match is now being arranged by a member of the Tedesco club to have Tom McNamara and "Mike" Brady play in a foursome with Daniel and Alec Ross. The match as originally planned was for Tommy Mc. to play Brady. This would have made a great match, as the records both pro's made, the former in the open national and the latter in the Massachusetts meeting, were very high class. No date or stakes have been placed as yet, but it is certain that the match will be played.

The Metropolitan Golf district will be very lively for the next month, with various club events and open tourneys. The annual three meeting at the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club started the ball rolling and attracted a very classy field. Travis, Fellows, Morgan, Max Behr, Merriman and many other champion golfers were among the starters. The wind-up of festivities will be in November at the Lakewood Golf Club

On the public golf links at Van Cortlandt Park a short time ago, Gilbert Nichols, the professional of the Wilmington Golf Club made a very decisive win over George Sargent, the national open champion in a 36 hole match over those links. The greens were in bad condition but the players got round in the low figures of 73 and 74. Nichols won by 8 up and 6 to go.

J. E. Kedian's card in the "Ringer Cup" contest at Woodland Golf Club is among the best on the board. His 18 holes are as follows:

Out .... 4 3 4 4 3 3 3 4 4—32
In ..... 3 4 4 3 3 3 3 4 3—30
62

There are three other scores at 62 and one at 64, while the rest of the cards are very near completion.

UNDER THE OLD STRAW HAT

By C. E. VAN LOAN.

Turn in a hurry call for Billy Nolan! Bat Nelson has broken out again! Billy and Bat worked many an oily game on the publicity promoters of this country, but it has remained for Bat, single teaming it henceforth and forevermore, to pull a new stunt in the line of press agent stuff. Bat, being refused permission to mingle with Philadelphia's elite, has brought suit against the management of a certain hotel, alleging that his reputation has been nicked to the extent of ten thousand bones. The feelings of this modest young Hegewisch violet have been trampled under the $1 patent leather pumps of a bedizened hotel clerk, and Bat desires a golden salve. If he cannot get the salve he will have a plaster—a yellow-backed one.

This is where Bat goes Jack O'Brien one better. Jack was derricked out of an exclusive hostelry in the city of New York. The Philadelphian brought no suit. He contented himself with giving the matter a great deal of publicity. It has remained for Bat Nelson to get the comeback on the first day press story, and now, says Mr. Nelson of Hegewisch, he will have revenge if he has to mortgage the crown jewels, hock the other suit of clothes, pawn the O-Bar Ranch and sacrifice the Hegewisch real estate.

Things Are Different Now.

Not very long ago Nelson discovered it wasn't such a bad idea to live at hotels with the ostentatious great. Six or seven years ago he did not sue any hotel proprietors for refusing him the privilege of separating himself from ten iron men for a hall bedroom. But when the money came rolling in and with it the fame of champion, Bat became jealous of his standing with the hotel men. He gave a banquet in San Francisco, and it was what might be called "some feed." It took place in the banquet room of a marble palace, which stands on the brow of Nob Hill, in what was once Millionaires' Acre. Since that event, the best has had trouble in being good enough for Mr. Nelson.

It was in Philadelphia that he received a bump which dropped his self esteem for the full count. An ordinary hotel clerk, who wore not more than $20,000 worth of diamonds, refused Mr. Nelson accommodations. It may have been that Bat figured that a clean living young man, without a bad habit in the world, and a bankroll the size of an elephant's ankle, had a right to stop at the hotel of his choice, provided the bankroll could stand the shock. The hotel people thought not. They called for the hook, and Nelson went elsewhere, meditating revenge.

Sudden Attack of the Ego.

A few nights ago Bat slipped back into that hotel disguised as a wealthy young Western ranchman. He was safe in his room before the management "gave him a rumble," as they say in the best circles. He might have stayed there unmolested but for a sudden attack of the ossified ego. Bat was so proud of the fact that he was inside at last that he sent out a flock of telegrams announcing the fact that he was a guest of the Bellevue-Stratford, and he signed them "Battling Nelson, Lightweight Champion of the World."

The proprietor threw a double Arab when he learned that he was entertaining a champion of the world unawares. The detectives were called out: the firemen were warned to be on the job, and a cordon was drawn about the room in which Nelson was writing telegrams. The press story says they made Bat a prisoner in his room, to keep him from mingling with the other guests. Perhaps the management expected that Bat would start a rough house in the grill or threaten to Ketchelize a waiter.

At any rate there was big trouble and now Bat, alleging that his delicate feelings have been injured and his timid, sensitive nature harpooned to the quick, demands a good fat winner's end and will go to law to secure the same. The little champion likes a long route. His best hold is a fight to a finish, but he is likely to discover that the longest, most tiresome fight of his life will be as a six-round canter besides a bout with old John Law and his delays.

It Will Peeve Quaker Jack.

How Philadelphia Jawn will peeve when he finds that Bat has gone him one better on the hotel game! How Billy Nolan will rub his shining pate when he reads the news! How Willus Britt will chew his stogy when he hears the latest gossip from the Comatose City.

Let us hope that Mr. B. Nelson, author, journalist, walloper extraordinary and everlasting Dane, will establish once and for all the right of a gladiator to spend four times what a night's lodging is worth. Surely a young man who takes a bath every day, shaves himself with a safety razor, carries his own typewriter, wears clean linen and abstains from eating pie with his knife is entitled to this nearly priceless boom.

Sic 'em, you Hegewisch tiger!

To some who write letters:

Mr. G. S. Fougner is there with the mild protest, as follows:

Dear Sir—Kindly allow me a few words in reply to friend Hogan's message from Paris and your comment on the same. You seem to entertain an extremely erroneous and unjustified opinion of the French people as far as sportsmanship is concerned. You seem surprised at Sam McVey's popularity in Paris, and, quoting your own words, "When Jeffries is through with Champion Johnson American sportsmen will donate him to the Parisians."

As a French newspaper writer recently arrived from Paris, I believe I am qualified to reply, thus defending the good name of a nation which has always been friendly to all Americans.

Believe me, dear sir, if a prizefighter gains a reputation in Paris he has really deserved it. Willie Lewis will be the first to tell you what a wonderful series of fights he had before he gained popularity. As to Sam McVey, his strength and skill as a fighter alone are responsible for his success. Joe Jeanette will tell you of the cheers which greeted both pugilists when the latter finally got the best of McVey after a terrific battle which lasted forty-nine rounds, and which is said to be one of the best fights ever witnessed.

Parisians Want No Fakers.

No fakes will ever be accepted in Paris. No home-made reputation will ever save a pugilist if he does not deliver the goods. No fakes of the Johnson-O'Brien or the Johnson-Ross description will ever be produced in the French capital. Should some ill-advised fool attempt to undertake their production, I would reserve my pity for the owner of the hall. Why, only a year ago the Longschamps racetrack, one of the finest in the world, was burned down because a horse had been pulled. The fact that he is aware of this condition of affairs is undoubtedly the real reason why "Champion" Johnson has not entered the Paris competition, and my letter may at least serve the object of disclosing this reason, which in your article you declare unknown.

Prize fighting is still a new sport in France, and the French have long ago admitted that none of their compatriots can rank with American champions, but every American who has been over there will tell you that the Parisians are willing to pay high prices for seats, but they demand fair play and will not stand for fakes. Most respectfully,

G. SELMER FOUGNER.

Thanks for the sidelight on the game in the French capital. How many racetracks would we have in this country if they burned the stands every time a horse was pulled? Ask me.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Bob Warner, the manager of Bobby Wilson, the Canadian lightweight champion, has taken George Algier, the clever little Cambridge featherweight, under his charge.

Kid Troubles is inclined to find fault with the draw decision handed out in his bout at Gary, Ind., with Willie Shaffer, claiming to have won all the way. Troubles is open to meet any of them at from 115 to 118 pounds and has ample backing.

Jimmy Walsh, still insisting that he is the bantamweight champion, is going back to England to fight Boyo Driscoll and Digger Stanley. Jimmy says that while the present crop of bantams in this country, most of whom he has already defeated, are fighting it out, it would pay to jump across the pond and then come back and whip the most likely looking rooster.

A syndicate of business men from Fort Worth, Tex., is offering $100,000 purse for the Jeffries-Johnson match.

Jimmy Coffroth, the California promoter, is going to rest up awhile. Coffroth says he will not enter into the promoting game until September.

Frank Mantell and Hugo Kelly, the Chicago middleweight, may meet at Sacramento if present plans go through. Sam Fitzpatrick, who steered Jack Johnson into the championship line, is looking after Mantell's interests.

Jim Stewart, Jimmy De Forest's heavyweight champion, is rounding into shape for a strenuous Fall campaign. There is some talk of Stewart meeting Sandy Ferguson.

Henry Piet, the French lightweight, is coming over to this country. Piet has a good record on the other side. Piet and Arthur Cote ought to fight it out for the French championship.

Tim Sullivan is going to Portland and help Bartley Connolly train for his fifteen-round bout with Terry Martin at Manchester. Sullivan in the mean time will be ready to take on any of the aspiring middleweights that care to meet him.

* * *

Sam Fitzpatrick has offered Billy Papke a return match with his new charge, Frank Mantell. The latter recently beat Jack Twin in Sacramento, and it has encouraged him to the point where he believes a second meeting with the Thunderbolt would result in a victory for himself. He will fight Hugo Kelly first, according to Fitzpatrick.

* * *

Gene Kugler, the Milwaukee man who has a fair record among the lightweights, is out with an offer to tackle any of them the latter part of August at from 130 to 133 pounds, preferring such men as Jack Galligan, Danny Goodman, Joe Bedell, Tommy Gary and Maurice Sayers. Kugler has decided to come East in October if he has no success in getting matches in Milwaukee.

Sam Fitzpatrick, who is now managing Frank Mantell, is anxious to secure a match for the clever young middleweight. Fitzpatrick says that at the present time Stanley Ketchel is the only fighter in the middleweight division that Mantell is averse to meeting. Papke can have a contest for the asking, and Jack (Twin) Sullivan, who rebelled at the decision being given to Mantell in their recent bout at Sacramento, will be accommodated with a return match.

Charlie Griffin of Australia is seeking a match with Battling Nelson before the Battler leaves for the West. Griffin is anxious to meet the lightweight champion in a ten-round bout, and it is possible the pair will be matched at the Fairmont A. C., at New York, in the near future. Griffin is now training at Stratford, Ct.

* * *

There is some chance of Packer McFarland and Ray Bronson, the Indianapolis lightweight, being matched in a twenty-round battle at New Orleans some time in September. The West Side Athletic Club of New Orleans has already matched Hugo Kelly of Chicago and Frank Klaus of Pittsburg for the latter part of September and they want a strong

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

GLORY BE, THEY'RE GETTING down to a working basis on this gambling at the ball games. The licenses have been granted to the Red Sox and Dove managers only on condition that they assist the police in suppressing the growing evil, which unchecked would eventually put the national game in as bad odor as horse racing. The police don't need this help, but it is well to give it anyway. The police at the baseball games know the boss gambler and know how he works as well as the officers at Washington and Avery know he runs his hand book on the ponies. More power to the hand book, for the racing game is as rotten as it can be now, but I'm against his baseball book. The popular sport is clean. Let's keep it so.

BY THE WAY, SPEAKING OF gambling, that tin horn sport who appears to have a monopoly on making book at the ball games, must read the papers. Instead of settling up in front of the grand stand as has been his custom, he trailed his bunch of pork and beans cappers and boosters down to the corner of Massachusetts and Huntington yesterday and paid them off on the street corner. Evidently they are commencing to sit up and take notice.

I AM IN RECEIPT OF A HANDSOME Aroostook County panama, sent me by Allan Lodey, all the way from Fort Fairfield, Maine, and I want to remark right here that Allan is a game old sport, even if he does wear a celluloid collar. Allan wrote me a letter panning me to a fare-ye-well for saying Jeff was a four-flusher, and then bet me a panama hat to a cigarette that I wouldn't print his letter. That's the kind I like to print, Al., for I get so many boosts from the boss that it's a break in the monotony to get roasted. I'm for you, Allan, strong for you, even if you are in bad on your Jeff dope. Come again whenever you have a grievance, and when you visit Boston to lay in the annual stock of clothing, let me know and I'll welcome you in our midst. I'm going to mail you a picture of myself with that hat on, so you can nail it up on the store door beside that woodcut of the handsome horse with the flowing mane and tail.

SOMETHING'S WRONG. HERE IT IS the second day since Jeff sailed and not a word from Sam Berger. Wonder if some one has kidnapped the peer of all prize fighter's press agents. (You can let that peer business run for Jeff or Berger, or even for Sweeney, whichever way you care to play it). From what I know of Sammy this silence can't last much longer, and oh, what a blow-off there'll be when the cork does pop.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Please tell a young 1915 contestant how he can lose ten pounds before the twenty-first and also gain a little strength.
A STICKER, No. 16 Beach st.

Road work will help you about as much as anything else, but I'd like to know more about you before committing myself. How old are you, how much do you weigh, how much have you already trained down and in what are you entered? With a name like yours you ought to be strong as a Marathon run.

E. C. ALDEN, TAUNTON, MASS.: I do not care to decide any betting proposition which has to do with baseball. Come along with any other gamble, from racing airships to playing fly-loo, and I'll do the best I can for you, but there is nothing stirring in this column on the national game.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
A friend of mine bets that you are C. E. Van Loan and I bet that you are "Bud" Fisher, the creator of A. Mutt. Who is right? I think if Mutt were in the comic section of the Sunday American it would increase the Sunday's circulation. Don't you? Mutt is the one best bet. "Bud" produced the goods in Mutt. It gets me how those Westerners didn't fall for Mutt. I'd like to see an answer in to-morrow's paper. Hoping to see Mutt for a long time, I remain, a "Bud" admirer.
STANLEY HOPE.

Come closer, Stanley, till I whisper it to you. You have the dope right, partly. I am a mutt, but not A. Mutt. So you see I can be neither Van Loan or Fisher. As to Mutt in the comic section, I'll pass that along to some one who gets more money than I do for deciding momentous questions of the day. You are eminently correct in regard to Mutt being the one best bet. He's as sure a one as a first past the post.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Can you tell me if Jack Johnson has ever been beaten since he entered the ring as a prize fighter, and if so, where? Also the same about Jim Jeffries? Your truly,
MAC.

Johnson lost to Joe Choynski in three rounds in 1901; to Marvin Hart in twenty rounds in Frisco, March 28, 1905, and to Joe Jeanette on a foul in the second round in Philadelphia, November 25, 1905. Jeffries has never been defeated.

CHARLIE DOHERTY, THE FAST right fielder of the Eastern A. A., of Revere, will be given a tryout next week with the Lynn team of the New England League. Doherty will be a great help to the Shoe City team, not only in his fast fielding, but also in swinging the willow. Doherty was leading the Eastern aggregation in hitting, with an average of .476.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
A is on second and B on third. The batter hits a fast grounder to short. The ball hits the shortstop's mitt, but goes through him and is kicked by A, who is running behind him to third. Is A out and can B score on the play? Could the batter take more than one base on the play?
RED SOX FAN.

A is not out for being hit by a batted ball, as that does not operate after a fielder has touched the ball. If, in the umpire's judgment, A kicked the ball intentionally, he would be out for interference and the umpire could compel the batsman to remain on first. B would score in any case. If the kick was accidental every one had the right to go as far as he could.

READER, ROSLINDALE.—JOHN McGraw did not play with the Baltimore club in 1888. He joined the Orioles in 1892, remaining with them until 1900, when he played with St. Louis. In 1901 and a part of 1902 he was with Baltimore, coming to New York in the Summer of 1902.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
A has pitched seven innings, and in the eighth he pitches three balls to the batter. Can he be taken out at this time and another pitcher sent in, or must A continue pitching until the batter is retired or becomes a base runner?
F. W. B., Lynn.

Any pitcher can be taken out after having pitched until one batsman has completed a time at bat.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
A was on first base and attempted to steal as B hit a foul. A returned toward first base and B remained in the batter's box. The ball, returned to the umpire, was put into play, whereupon the pitcher threw to first base and A was tagged out before he had touched the base. Was the umpire right in calling him out?
A. FAN.

Man was not out. The umpire should not have called "play" after the foul until the runner had retouched his base.

JOHN C. CARR, CHARLESTOWN—Jack Reed did not play on Holy Cross football team within the past five years, according to the best information I can obtain.

BRANNIGAN WINS BOUT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Patsy Brannigan of Pittsburg had a shade the better of Jim Kendrick of England in their bout at the Fairmount A. C. It went the full 10 rounds. Kendrick did considerable of the leading, but Brannigan had the advantage in three of the rounds. The Englishman got a lead in two, and in the other five rounds there was little to choose between the fast pair of bantams.

SPENCER WITH ST. PAUL.

Ed Spencer will finish the season with the St. Paul Club of the American Association. The big catcher reached St. Paul a few days ago on his journey to the Pacific slope and decided to fill in for the rest of the season. This was agreeable to the Boston Red Sox management and the big fellow will return to organized ball.

PIRATES AND CUBS HAVING A HOT SCRAP

The race in the National League seems to have narrowed down between the Pirates and the Cubs. The Giants are over one hundred points behind the bunch from Smoketown, which has been slowed down considerably in the last two weeks.

The Cubs are quickening their stride pennantward. Their pitching staff, the best as a whole possessed by any big league club, are going their best. Archer has almost made good for Johnny Kling. The Cubs's outfield, its weakest section, is still good enough. The infield is the same stonewall it has been.

The Pirates without Wagner are not by any means the formidable aggregation they have been. The whole team seems to have lost backbone and jump. The Brooklyn outfit, always a Pirate stumbling block, has put the brakes on the visitors, while our own Doves have been acting as paving stones for Chicago.

The Giants this year are not the Giants of yore. Their stature doesn't measure up to anything gigantic. Really the Reds have it on New York, if the plain truth is to be told. Mathewson's individual pitching record is still gilt edged. Wiltse has been going along well, but two pitchers never won a league pennant. The Giants are weak behind the bat and they don't field or stick like they used to.

For the pennant it seems to be either the Cubs or Pirates, with the Smokeville crowd slowing down.

The Doves, well, they seem to have nailed their flag to the lowest rung on the cellar laddder. They may crawl up a rung or so, but they are showing no symptoms.

The Phillies and the Cincis will fight it out for the last place in the first column. The Dodgers are glued to the second division by divine right of inheritance to tradition.

M'LEAN RACES AT BEACH OVAL

There is some class in that bike race at the Revere track to-night when Hugh MacLean, the champion motor-paced rider of the world, makes his first appearance of the season in a twenty-five-mile event, testing his speed against Peter Brobeck of South Boston and Pat Logan of the same burg, a pretty bad pair to deal with, considering that he has conceded them two laps start.

The race is the first of four that MacLean will ride in and he must make good at the start off in order to hold his prestige of being at the head of the game. He has done some of the hardest kind of training for the past two weeks and will startle the fans by the gait he will cut out with Carl Ruden, the reckless steersman, leading the way for him.

MacLean will go out from the gun to catch his rivals and expects to go through the whole distance at top speed, with not a let-up unless he gets tossed.

The followers of the bike sport are anxious to know what kind of form MacLean is in for his coming races with Collins and Moran, the two men who say they will beat MacLean, because he did not start riding at the beginning of the season. Hughey says he is going to clean them all up just as he has done in the past, but his aspirations will get a big bump if he fails to beat the couple of fast youngsters who line up against him to-night, and there is many a slip in motor-paced racing.

The amateur riders are begetting riled at seeing the Connolly brothers cop all the prizes regularly and are going to work some combinations on the Everett lads to see if they can't out-general them and get some of the prize money for themselves.

EASTERN ATHLETES OFF FOR SEATTLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—With the exception of Harry Hillman, the Eastern aggregation of athletes are now on their way to Seattle to measure strides with the West in the National A. A. U. championships, which are carded for Seattle on August 13 and 14. Hillman found it impossible to go to-day, but will, if possible, make a late train to-night or an early train to-morrow morning.

McEntee, Dawbarn, Lawrence, Noble, Gissing and Bellairs of the New York A. C., Erickson of the Mott Haven A. C. and Sherman and Ballard of the Boston A. A. were aboard the train as it pulled out of the Grand Central station to-day, and the nine representatives of the Metropolitan Association received a loyal sendoff. All looked in the pink of condition, and if the long trip does not raise havoc with any of them they will be as fit as a fiddle to fight for the honors.

MORAN AND COLLINS IN SPECIAL RACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—At Clifton, N. J., to-morrow Jimmy Moran and Elmer Collins, the two best pace followers in America, will meet in a special match race, ten-mile heats, best two in three. A meeting between these two men at the ten-mile distance has been desired by the fans, and their wishes are to be gratified. In addition to this special race there will be an unlimited pursuit race between Freddie Jones of Passaic and Joe Halligan, who is considered one of the best pursuit riders in the business.

$50,000 FOR BIG FIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Sam Berger, Jim Jeffries's manager, who the big fellow left behind to take care of bids for the proposed match with Johnson, has a little business in the shape of a tentative offer. He received a $50,000 offer from Denver men, the offer being made through a well-known sporting writer, Otto Flotto. The offer, which came by telegraph, was as follows:

"Denver, Col., Aug. 6.
"Movement on foot here guaranteeing protection to hold Johnson-Jeffries fight. If successful will deposit purse, $50,000, in any bank you may name.
OTTO FLOTTO."

Berger said the offer looked a good one, providing, of course, the promoters could guarantee that the fight would be free from interference on the part of the authorities.

TIM JORDAN OUT FOR THE SEASON

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 7.—That Tim Jordan will be out of the game for the rest of the season is Bonesetter Reese's opinion, and the "bonesetter" seldom makes a wrong diagnosis. The bonesetter discovered a broken and detached floating cartilage under Jordans knee. It is a very serious injury, according to this expert, and unless Jordan takes a long, long rest he may be permanently crippled.

BLAIR GOES TO MINORS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Manager Stallings of the New York American League Club has trader Catcher Walter Blair to Newark for Pitcher Frill. Waivers had been secured on Blair some time ago, and he caught his first game for McGinnity yesterday afternoon. The trade was made because young Ed Sweeney has shown such phenomenal form as a backstop that, with Jack Kleinow, he seems quite capable of taking care of the backstopping department. In Frill, Stallings gets a fine southpaw, an addition to the pitching staff that should bolster up the box to an appreciable degree.

PACKY AND AD READY TO SIGN

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Packy McFarland and Ad Wolgast will likely sign articles for a fight this afternoon and then throw the contest open to the highest bidder. Tom Jones, looking after Wolgast, and a representative from the McFarland camp with full power to act, met yesterday and argued over the weight question only to postpone the meeting until this afternoon when it appears action will be taken. Wolgast wanted 133 pounds three hours before ring time. Packy insisted on 133 pounds at 3 o'clock. The matter ended here for the day, but is almost certain that a compromise to-day will find the men signing at 133 pounds four hours before fighting.

Coffroth is hot after the match and already Tom McCarey of Los Angeles and several Eastern clubs want the mill.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON COMING TO AMERICA

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Sir Thomas Lipton is about to leave this side on board the steam yacht Erin to take part in the great naval parade in connection with the Hudson-Fulton celebration in New York, after which he will get into communication with the New York Yacht Club to arrange for his next challenge for the America's cup. Sir Thomas Lipton admits that he has been beaten three times by better boats and better crews, but he is quite ready to challenge under the old rules. All that he will ask for is that the new challenger will not be required to cross the Atlantic on its own bottom.

ANGLE TODAY AT POND.

An invitation is extended to all followers of the sport to bring their rods and participate in the fly and bait casting.

WANT MATCH WITH RELIANCE AT COMBINATION

Lynn horsemen have come back on the proposition made by the admirers of the pacing gelding Directomwood to match him for $500 against Reliance, the pacing idol of the Shoe City, by accepting the defi with the condition the event take place at Rockdale Park, Peabody, and proposing August 14 for the date.

President J. W. Linnehan of the Dorchester Driving Club in reply says that no attention will be given to holding the race over the home track of the Lynns, but that the money is waiting if the Reliance backers will accept Combination Park, Medford, and the date September 18. He points that Combination is centrally located for horsemen in Greater Boston to attend. Mr. Linnehan declares it is up to Lynn now to accept, or let the matter drop where it is without more talk.

Sam Hastings of the Dorchesters this week had Trainer Lester Dore wire the owner of the gelding Major Mallow, 2:05¼, an offer of $3,000. The reply came back that the price on him is $6,000. Mr. Hastings will go no higher for an eleven-year-old gelding, even if he has broken several half-mile track records this season.

JOHNSON GETS $10,000 TO MEET O'BRIEN

TALLAC, Cal., Aug. 7.—Jimmy Coffroth, who is here enjoying a rest, still mingles business with his pleasure. The coast fight promoter to-day wired Jack Johnson, the colored heavyweight, who is contemplating a battle with Jeffries, asking him if he would meet Jack O'Brien in a ten-round battle before his Colma Club on September 6. Jim offered the colored fighter $10,000 for his end, win, lose or draw, and the round trip tickets. As Johnson is billed to fight Ketchel on Oct. 9, Coffroth figures that Jack would be losing nothing by coming West and taking on O'Brien. The pair have fought a six-round battle only a short while ago, the mill being held in the East. Johnson bested his man and was himself in poor condition. If form counts for anything, the Philadelphia fighter ought to prove easy for Johnson with the latter in trim. Coffroth hopes to hear from Johnson within a day or so.

DUALITY OF MAN

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

YOU say that your nature is double, that life
Seems more and more intricate, complex and dual,
Because in your bosom there wages the strife
'Twixt an angel of light and a beast that is cruel;
An angel who whispers your spirit has wings,
And a beast who would chain you to temporal things.

I listen with interest to all you have told,
And now let me give you my view of your trouble;
You are to be envied, not pitied; I hold
That every strong nature is always made double.
The beast has his purpose, he need not be slain.
He should serve the good angel in harness and chain.

The body that never knows carnal desires,
The heart that to passion is always a stranger,
Is merely a furnace with unlighted fires;
It sends forth no warmth while it threatens no danger,
But who wants to shiver in cold safety there?
Touch flame to the fuel! then watch it with care.

Those wild, fierce emotions that trouble your soul
Are sparks from the great source of passion and power;
Throne reason above them and give it control,
And turn into blessing this dangerous dower.
By lightnings unguided destruction is hurled,
But chained and directed they gladden the world.

Woman's Crime Against Woman

Mothers Should Train Their Sons to Be Good Husbands

By DOROTHY DIX

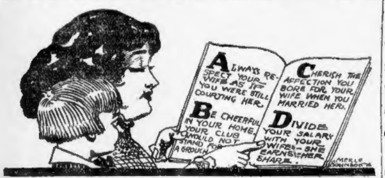
Article No. 3

YESTERDAY I said that every woman that raises up a girl could provide some man with a good wife if she would.

To-day I declare that every woman who raises a boy, could provide some girl with a good husband if she would.

When we talk about marriage being a failure, and the prevalence of divorce, we assume a high and mighty air, and attribute matrimonial troubles to a few big vices. Every woman knows better than this. Every woman knows that what wrecks the happiness of the majority of wives is not infidelity or drunkenness, but stinginess, grouchiness, and sheer brutality, and lack of tenderness and consideration of a woman's rights and feelings on the husband's part.

Some of the best men in the world are the worst husbands. There are plenty of men who are models of all the virtues who could smash the whole Ten Commandments into smithereens every day of their lives and still be better husbands and be more lovable and agreeable to live with than they are.



ALWAYS RESPECT YOUR WIFE AS IF YOU WERE STILL COURTING HER.
CHERISH THE AFFECTION YOU BORE FOR YOUR WIFE WHEN YOU MARRIED HER.
BE CHEERFUL IN YOUR HOME. YOUR CLUB SHOULD NOT STAND FOR A GROUCH
DIVIDE YOUR SALARY WITH YOUR WIFE—SHE EARNS HER SHARE.
MERLE JOHNSON

"She should instill the Golden Rules of Matrimony and Wife Treatment into her boy while he's young"

There are very few women in the world so blessed as not to have suffered from conduct on their husband's part that they forgave because they knew that the men did not realize how cruel they were. This being the case, it is amazing that any woman should be so lacking in common humanity to her sex as not to at least bring up one boy to be the sort of husband that every man should make.

What Makes Bad Husbands

For it is not meanness that makes men treat their wives like they do. It is ignorance and lack of training—lack of having a woman's point of view branded in on them from their earliest years.

Take the matter of money, for instance. There isn't a wife in the world that does not yearn for financial independence and does not resent the fact that she has to ask her husband for every penny she has, and that is generally doled out to her with grumbling and muttering about women's extravagance.

It lies within the power of every mother of a son to stop the family mendicant business with the present generation of husbands. The mother has the forming of the boy's character, and if she doesn't impress it indelibly on him that no man has a right to marry until he has made up his mind to hand over a fair proportion of his income to his wife, and ask no questions about what she does with it, why, it is simply because that woman hasn't got a grain of sympathy with any other woman living.

It is also a potent source of unhappiness with wives that they are treated with so little respect by their husbands, and that their husbands pooh-pooh their views. The woman who exacts respect from her son from the time he is born, and who makes him treat her, and his sisters, with deference and consideration, is never going to turn that sort of an egotistical tyrant loose on another woman.

Teach the Boys to Be Tender

The average husband takes everything that his wife does for him as no more than his due. He never notices her work, her sacrifices, her economies. Still less does he thank her for them and bestow a few kind words of appreciation upon her. Surely it lies within the province of every mother to bring up a boy who will at least be grateful occasionally to the wife who is putting in her life trying to please him.

Every woman knows how much need womankind has of tenderness and sympathy. She knows that a woman would rather be physically beaten than for a man to say cruel and harsh things to her, or to make her the butt of sarcastic jokes. Knowing this, the woman is worse than criminal who does not teach her boy from the time he can understand anything at all to treat all women gently and reverently and chivalrously.

There are tens of thousands of women who daily engage in the hopeless struggle of trying to make a home bright and cheerful when there is a man sitting around in it who is grumpy and grouchy and a perpetual wet blanket over everything. It is the bounden duty of every woman who brings a man child into the world to save some other woman from the affliction of this kind of a husband. She should beat it into her boy with a club, if she can't get it into him any other way, that it is just as much a man's business to do the smiling act in the home as it is a woman's, and that if he is not going to add to the cheerfulness of the domestic situation he should have the decency to stay out of it.

He Should Stay Single

It is also every mother's place to impress it on her son, line upon line and precept upon precept, that if he isn't going to deal fairly with his wife he should stay single. A man does not have to marry. Girls are pretty well off, in these days, either in their father's houses or making their own livings, and unless a man has made up his mind that he is going to devote himself to making a woman happy, he does a dastardly thing in not leaving her where she is, and this is a fact that his mother should implant in the very core of his heart.

The woman who brings up a selfish, undisciplined, unsympathetic, high-tempered boy knows that he is going to make at least two women in the world miserable—his wife and his wife's mother. It is a thing so cruel to inflict this needless suffering in the world that a fiend might hesitate to do it; yet we see it being done by good women, who still have the nerve to talk about their devotion to their sex.

Every woman who has a daughter could provide some man with a good wife. Every woman who has a son could provide some woman with a husband who would make her perfectly happy.

And women don't do this!

That is woman's greatest crime against woman and against society. The whole divorce question could be settled in one generation by the mothers of the country, if they would.

This is the third article on this important subject, and completes the discussion of it by Dorothy Dix.

Today's Best Story

THE great banker looked keenly at the young man.

"So you are temporarily embarrassed, eh?" he asked kindly.

"I am sorry to say I am," said the young man, emboldened by his manner.

"How much do you want?"

"Five hundred dollars would tide me over."

"And what security can you offer?"

"I can offer you," said the young man impressively, "my own personal security."

The old man arose, with a slow smile, and raised the lid of a big iron-bound chest which stood in the corner.

"Will you get in here, please?" he said.

"In there? Why?" asked the startled young man.

"Because," was the reply, "this is the place in which I always keep my securities."

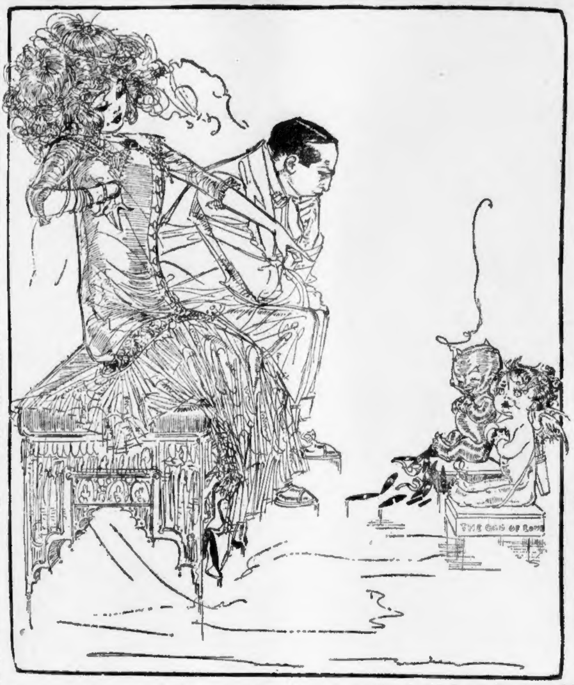
Love or Nick O'Teen? By Nell Brinkley

"Choose Between Me and Your Cigar"



"Betty has slapped the face of the swarthy God of mine and won't let him sit with the pale God of us both"

"For Maggie has written a letter to give me my choice between
The wee little whimpering Love and the great Nick O'Teen.
We quarreled about Havanas—we fought o'er a good cheroot,
And I know she is exacting, and she says I am a brute."

THERE you sit, the two of you, and I must 'eeny-meeny-miney-mo' on the two of you till I fall on the one I'll have. For my think-tank is fuddled with arguing and reasoning and wondering, and I'll have to choose with a gamble!

Betty has slapped the face of the little swarthy god of mine and won't let him sit with the little pale god of us both.

I am willing that they pal it together on our particular and special mantel, friendly-like and tolerent, but Betty says there won't be any mantel unless the white god sits alone and I smash my Nick O'Teen.

And I wonder.

Betty is white and gold and fair and slim, sweeter than any dream that ever arose out of smoke—and my cigar is brown as an Arab and fat.

But when my Betty's gold head is burned to ashes there will never be any other—and when my black beauty is down to a stub there will be ten-times-ten-squillion more if I choose, all like that.

My Betty is tender, and soft to touch, and her voice is a caress, and I want her for mine, but sometimes maybe (whisper it though), my Betty will talk when I want silence and just the drumming of her heart to tell she sympathizes. She will be blue and still when I want the ring of her voice. She will laugh and mock when I want her to love me. She will love me when I want her to laugh and mock. She wil want to stay when I want to go. She will want to go when I ache to stay!

But Nick takes on my moods as a Lily-pond the color of the sky. He dovetails into my woes and my gayety and my musing and my hoping. He gives me silence and dreams, always fresh dreams. He goes where I go—unquestioning, content, like a brown dog, till I die.

Love's fiery torch or the glow of an auburn cigar?

Which will I blow out and which will I pad along in the wake of?

The scale all swings to my odd little god with his smoke-blackened smile and his eyes buried in musing and merriment, ugly and comforting. But—but—why——

Because my Betty is white and gold and slim and fair, and her voice is a caress, and she is soft to touch, and I want her for mine; because of that I set the pale little Love image on our particular, special mantel—and I kick over my blackened little Idol with the toe of my shoe—for I can forget!

My Wife's Gone to the Country. Hurray! Hurray!

New Words to the Old Melody.

By IRVING BERLIN,

One of the Authors of the Original Song.

I.

BROWN went into the garden, a hatchet in his hand,
And cut down one of his old father's cherry trees so grand;
His father saw what happened, so quickly asked him why.
Then Browney answered: "Father, dear, I cannot tell a lie."

CHORUS.

"My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest;
that's why she went away.

HURRAY HURRAY!
H.L.

She took the children with her—
Hurray—Hurray!
Just put it down on history's page—
my wife's gone away."

II.

He bought a safety razor, not to economize—
I didn't know the reason why, so Browney put me wise:
He said: "My wife's a cut-up ,so you can guess the rest,
If she comes home and starts to cut, the safest way's the best.

CHORUS.

"My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest;
that's why she went away.
She took the children with her—
Hurray—Hurray!
She cuts a figure ,that means me—
my wife's gone away."

III.

A cry of 'Help! I'm drowning!"
'Twas Browney sure enough;
He happened to be bathing while the ocean waves were rough.
They pulled him to the seashore; unconscious there he lay;
The doctor said: "This man is dead," but Browney woke to say:

CHORUS.

"My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest;
that's why she went away.

MY WIFE'S GONE TO THE COUNTRY HUR-RAY HUR-RAY!
HARRY LEWIS

She took the children with her—
Hurray—Hurray!
Just let me live till she comes back—
my wife's gone away."

HIS AUDIENCE.

A bill of sale case before the Court was being argued at quite unnecessary length by a garrulous counsel. After an hour the K. C. remarked to the Judge: "I will now proceed, my Lord, to address myself to the furniture."

"You have been doing that for some time," dryly replied the Judge, as he stifled a yawn.—London Times.

Percy the Press Agent

He Quarrels with the Show Girl Over Bald Heads

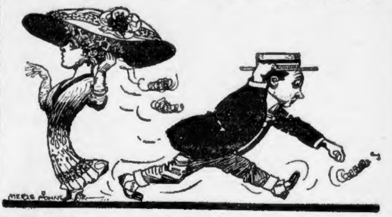
By HANK

PERCY had been munching his "ham and" for five minutes without speaking. The Show Girl had tried to start a conversation on various subjects, but all she could get from her companion in the form of a reply was an occasional grunt.

"What's the matter with you?" she asked finally. "You look as if nobody loved you and you were ready to eat caterpillars."

"Might just as well eat them as this truck," growled Percy, "and as for nobody lovin' me, I guess that's right, too."

"I suppose I've offended again," sighed the Show Girl resignedly. "What have I been doing now? I can't imagine. Chee! Since we signed preliminary articles of matrimony I've put a padlock on my peeps and haven't thrown a goo-goo glance even at the manager on paydays."



The Show Girl hasn't a great desire for hair, but she did want those puffs

"Huh," snorted Percy, unbelievingly, "then how do you account for the sizing up you gave that old guy who just left the table?"

Percy's Friend and Pinto

The Show Girl shrieked with laughter.

"You foolish boy," she purred, "I was just admiring his noble brow."

"His noble brow!" ejaculated her companion. "Why, he was all brow. The top of his head was so shiny it reflected like a mirror. With his hat off, he was half undressed."

"Don't you knock bald-headed men to me," answered the Show Girl. "I like 'em. They all look so distinguished. It gives a man dignity to be bald."

"Gives him nothing," was Percy's retort. "All it gives him is a wild desire to try everything from kerosene to lemons as a tonic to bring his hair back again."

"I don't believe it," said the Show Girl. "I think it's a blessing to be bald. No hair to fuss with or look straggly if you don't clip it once a month, and always that look of dignity and neatness so much to be admired. What's the use of hair, anyhow? Nobody ever heard of hair being useful to anybody. I don't see what it was ever given to people for."

"Oh, there have been times when it came in handy," said Percy. "I have a friend who has a bunch of fodder on his top that looks like a handful of seaweed. He was always knocking his hair, saying as how he couldn't comb it because it was always full of snarls, and resembled a hair mattress busted open. He had a dog at home which was covered with the same kind of curly hair. They called it Pinto. My friend used to say that he thought Darwin's theory was all wrong, for he was perfectly sure that one of his ancestors had been a dog with curly hair like Pinto's.

"Well, one night my friend got home late and for reasons that even your innocent girlish mind can surmise, didn't want his wife to see him. He followed the usual program of removing his shoes before climbing up-stairs, and managed to get into the bedroom in a manner that would have done credit to a professional sneak thief. He was just about to climb into bed when he fell on the floor with a crash. Of course, his wife awoke. My friend lay trembling and heard his wife say:

"'Pinto, Pinto, is that you? Lay down, naughty dog.'

"At the same time she reached over the side of the bed to pat the animal she thought had made the noise. In another minute her hand touched my friend's curls. He didn't dare move and as soon as he realized his wife had mistaken his curls for those of Pinto he began thinking of trying to let out an imitation bark.

She Outclassed Munchausen

"'Now, Pinto, be a good dog and go to sleep,' he heard his wife say, as she patted his had. After she had gone to sleep again he crawled into bed, and she never did know what time he came home that night."

"That story doesn't prove much to me," said the Show Girl. "If he hadn't been deceiving his wife he wouldn't have had to use his hair that way."

Percy paid the food check in silence, and as they moved through the door into Broadway a gust of wind caught one of the Show Girl's puffs and wafted it down the street.

"Mercy!" screamed the Show Girl. "Please get it, Percy."

"Thought you had no use for hair," said Percy, sarcastically, when he returned and handed the Show Girl a much bedraggled wisp of blonde tresses.

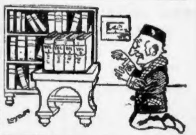
"Only because you men like to see lots of it on our heads," she snapped. "If it wasn't for that, I'd just as soon be bald."

"Mayme," said Percy, slowly, "the Baron Munchausen compared to you is an amateur."

"I ain't never met no barons," answered the Show Girl; "but if the one you mentioned wasn't baldheaded, I wouldn't like him, so there."

"You win," said Percy. "Let's go home."

How Far Did the Bookworm Go!



DOCTOR ELIOT is said to have conceived his idea of prescribing a diet of five feet of books for those in need of a liberal education from the adventures of a little book-worm that started to eat his way through the Doctor's library.

The insect commenced his education on the four books shown in the picture. Each of the books contains 500 pages. The bug started at page 200 in volume 1 and bored his way to page 450 in volume 4, when the Doctor discovered him.

Can you tell how many leaves the worm had passed through when he met the Doctor?

EUROPE SEEKS TRADE IDEAS FROM BOSTON

"Boston has not lost its distinction as a good trade centre among Europeans," said Charles F. Bacon of Chandler & Co., in Tremont street, to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day. Mr. Bacon has recently returned from Europe, where he combined a business trip with pleasure.

"This city in a business relation, I can well assure you, is well known in every large European centre," said Mr. Bacon, "and merchants are constantly inquiring about our methods of business, and the plans we are using in carrying on great enterprises.

They are adopting American ideas there, and one is much gratified to find a distinctly American store in London, conducted by Selfridge & Co., where the Londoner, as well as others, can study our methods of doing business.

Business Men Welcome.

"But there is a growing regard for American ideas all over the continent, and when one is recognized as a successful business man from America, there is a special welcome for him and a willingness to adopt his plans or hear suggestions.

"But we must not run away with the idea, that we are the only ones that have up-to-date department stores, for during my stay in Moscow, I was much impressed with the modern and timely schemes which the Russian business man displays in his trade enterprises.

"Moscow has not a few department stores carried on with excellent business judgment and any American would be proud of them.

"How did you find business in Europe?" was asked.

"Very good, and not in any one part of the country, but a wave of prosperity passing all over the European cities. While in Paris, Berlin and other sections, I found every business man whom I met optimistic.

Paris Enjoys Prosperity.

"Paris has many striking indications of revived business interests, and I could see that conditions were improving there. The same is to be said in a variety of ways of German centres of trade.

"The Germans want to trade with every one, and they are well equipped for trading, and keep up a strong commercial relation with other nations. London is also a great place for trade and I could see here how much briskness there was in a strong demand for staple goods.

"Was there anything said about the tariff abroad?"

"Not a word. They don't care much about such questions as this one presents, for they have their own special trade measures to defend. They would be interested, if it affected their trade with us, for they admire our buying capacity, and often refer to it in an ordinary conversation.

"They have much confidence in President Taft, and they feel sure that matters are safe in his hands, no matter what turn they take."

"Do you think that the fall offers much encouragement to trade?

"I certainly do. The outlook for business is excellent, and everything points to a splendid fall business. No man need be discouraged at what is coming."

NEW FEATURES FOR WONDERLAND PARK

A great "Florodora" number will be the new big feature of Wonderland's "Cinderella" production next week, participated in by twenty boys and girls in beautiful costume, and presented at 3:30 and 8:30 p. m. The Wonderland management has been working out this feature for several weeks, and Professors Gilmore and Kee have arranged and rearranged the spectacle until it suits. The "1915 vaudeville" will present an entirely new bill for the coming week, and the other big park shows will introduce new features. The "Princess and Prophet" has been elaborated, and the Salome dance of Miss Pauline A. Harice is a fascinating incidental. This latter performance will be played free for the Sunday American Outing Club Monday and Tuesday for the first time this season. The Wonderland Park free tickets published to-morrow will contain the usual one for park admission and an absolutely free coupon for the "Prophet and Princess," while twelve half-fare tickets will enable the holders to make the rounds of the park at very little expense. Children under twelve with adults are admitted to the park free up to 6 o'clock.

FUN FOR OUTING CLUB AT NANTASKET

Before your dealer sells out his SUNDAY AMERICANS to-morrow make sure, you South Shore members of the Sunday American Outing Club, to get your SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets to famed Nantasket Beach, where the big ocean scenes are and where the big rides take you high and low and fill the day with enjoyment. The free tickets published to-morrow are half-fare coupons for Grant's mammoth roller coaster, Grant's flying horses and Ye Old Mill. It saves you fifteen cents if you use the tickets Monday or Friday. These big rides constitute the greatest fun factory in the village. Get the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Charles River Basin Commission.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Charles River Basin Commission, 367 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., until 2:30 o'clock P. M., of WEDNESDAY, August 18, 1909, for excavating a channel about 4,500 feet long in the Charles River, below Galen Street in Watertown, and for disposing of the materials by filling and grading an island and the banks of the river. The work will consist of about 18,000 cubic yards of earth excavation which will be disposed of, as directed, in filling and grading the banks of the river immediately adjacent to the work; of about 30,000 cubic yards of earth excavation, which will be disposed of in filling and grading an island and the banks of the river a short distance below the proposed excavation, and a small amount of rock excavation. Pamphlets containing further information for bidders, forms of proposal, contract and specifications will be mailed to contractors who apply to the Chief Engineer, or may be obtained at his office, 367 Boylston Street, Boston, where also a plan may be seen. It is expected that these pamphlets will be ready about Thursday, August 12th, but the plan and copies of the specifications may be obtained at any time. The printed form must be used in making proposals. The Commission reserves the right to reject any or all proposals and to accept the proposal deemed best for the Commonwealth. HENRY D. YERXA, Chairman; JOSHUA B. HOLDEN, EDGAR R. CHAMPLIN, Charles River Basin Commission; HIRAM A. MILLER, Chief Engineer; WILLIAM S. YOUNGMAN, Secretary.

Well, Ladies and Gentlemen, You Have Your New Tariff

And as the Swedish Gentleman Said, "The Yoke Is on You"

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

The people of the United States, manufacturers, consumers, infant industries and gigantic trusts, are now working under a new tariff—or rather the old tariff, with some modern fixings.

Perhaps it might have been worse, as the gentleman said when the burglar forgot to steal his overshoes along with the other things, but it could not be very much worse.

About all that the ordinary citizen can get out of it in the way of comfort is a grim laugh at his own expense, and some interesting speculation as to trust expansion and general booming of special interests from now on.

The sailing is fine and plain; the big people have what they want; the little people will have to take what they can get. The currency system gives the big fellows hundreds of millions of ACTUAL FIAT MONEY to draw upon when they want it. The big men can't ever be short of money—at least, for the present.

The good old Ship of State is starting out on another and a gay cruise; IT PROMISES TO BE MOST PROFITABLE—TO THE DISTINGUISHED PIRATICAL GENTLEMEN THAT HAVE TAKEN POSSESSION OF THE SHIP.

Figures about the tariff are dull; we shan't bore you with any. Pictures tell the story in the best, simplest way.

Mr. Joseph Keppler publishes this week an admirable cartoon entitled "Home From the Wars." Senator Aldrich, the "warrior," is rushing into the arms of "Privilege," his fat wife, while "Infant Industry," the swollen baby, crows with delight, and "Legislature," the faithful, servile dog, jumps at his knee.

It's a good picture; it ought to be on every wall for the education of voters.

Aldrich, the dangerous man, representative of the politically corrupt State of Rhode Island, whose daughter married John D. Rockefeller's son—that gentleman Aldrich DICTATED YOUR TARIFF FOR YOU; you had nothing to say about it.

We shall have booming times, at least for a while. When the big fellows have a terrific banquet of millions, certain fat crumbs drop below. You voters will get some crumbs. Pick them up and be thankful. The crumbs may not fall for long.

If you have time, look over your tariff, apart from the complicated figures. Study its meaning and learn how clever are the men that rule you.

Hides are on the free list. That's very nice for the Leather Trust, which takes the hide and makes it into shoe leather. The trust gets its RAW MATERIAL FREE, and sells the manufactured leather PROTECTED BY DUTY.

The farmer has no trust, and so the hide skinned off his ox or cow gets no protection. A very nice system—FOR THE TRUST! The hide from the farmer's ox competes with the hides raised all over the world. When you buy a pair of shoes YOU PAY THE DUTY THAT PROTECTS THE TRUST THAT GETS THE FREE RAW MATERIAL!

There's a great deal of talk about crude petroleum coming in free of duty. It does come in free of duty. But don't for a moment absorb the childish notion that this is not pleasing to Rockefeller, the petroleum king, whose son married Aldich's daughter.

Standard Oil stock, with news of free petroleum, went above $700 a share on the stock market yesterday. It was selling at $390 a share when Roosevelt was at Washington, and when a few silly voters imagined that Rockefeller wouldn't find judges to call off that twenty-nine million dollars fine.

Mr. Rockefeller's busy little company is earning eighty-five million dollars a year! One-half of this amount is paid out in dividends, $45,000,000 a year, INTEREST ON A THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS! And the other half, interest on another thousand million dollars, is put away in a reserve fund. The Aldrich-Rockefeller grandbabies ought to be pretty safe in the future—don't you wish yours were as safe?

WHY does Standard Oil go above $700 a share when the new tariff allows petroleum to come in free?

Why, for a very simple reason. There are one hundred and twenty-five little independent oil dealers in America. They haven't any retailing facilities to speak of. ROCKEFELLER'S MARVELOUS EXECUTIVE CAPACITY AND RELENTLESS COMPETITION have given him control of retailing facilities.

What's the good of the little fellow having oil if he can't SELL it? What's the use of Rockefeller paying duty to the government on oil that comes in from other countries, when he is the only fellow that can sell it after it gets here? There's no use of his wasting valuable money paying a duty to the government on oil. He can keep that money in his pocket, refine the oil when it comes in, fix the price as he chooses, through his control of retail facilities.

And, incidentally, with his pipe lines and his intricate selling machinery, and his great tank steamers tapping the oil wells in Russia, and bringing the oil here free, HE CAN SCARE THE LITTLE INDEPENDENT OIL MAN INTO SUBMISSION, OR DRIVE HIM INTO BANKRUPTCY. And at the same time he can save up his home supply of oil, and call upon the product of the whole world to fight and destroy competition!

It's an interesting tariff bill, it won't choke you to death, you will go on living, and times will probably be good—that is to say, the man who wants to work hard, with just about enough to live on and bring up his family half decently, will have work to do.

A long procession of Americans will make both ends meet, with a little difficulty, and be grateful for the chance.

One little platoon in the procession will feel fairly fat and comfortable—the useful distributing, semi-parasite class.

And a few choice spirits, the Aldriches, Rockefellers and big trust managers, will have their millions, and tens of millions, and hundreds of millions, while the average man, who pays the bill so humbly and votes so submissively, will just about keep alive.

There's nothing desperate about the situation, however, and you voters needn't fret, for, fortunately, NOTHING IN THIS WORLD IS PERMANENT. Just as soon as the people combine brains, education and determination, they can get back everything that has been taken from them.

The power to tax hasn't been taken away, and can't be taken away. Rockefeller may own all the oil, and another man may own all the railroads. But they can't move the oil or the railroads OFF THE EARTH! The earth's inhabitants can get them whenever they want them.

DR. PARKHURST'S ARTICLE —ON— UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

THERE often occurs to one while traveling in Europe the wish that there were such a thing as a universal language. It would certainly contribute to facility of intercourse and diminish the amount of preparation needed in order to be able to move intelligently and comfortably among foreign people.

English is now spoken so generally along the principal tourist routes that one experiences little difficulty in finding means of satisfying the ordinary necessities of travel. English is spoken in all first-class hotels, and even outside of the hostelries there are many to be found with a sufficient smattering of that tongue to enable them to be easily misunderstood. Although that does not at all afford that admittance to the inner character and life of persons which is after all the supreme fruit of travel.

The question, however, as to whether the world would be better off with a single language is one that has two sides to it. to it.

Scripture would seem to represent the splitting up of the one original language into several as a kind of disaster. It is quite possible, however, that what is picturequely described as occurring at the Tower of Babel was a symptom of progress rather than of deterioration.

One reason why languages differ is because peoples themselves differ. Not only what a man says, but the way he says it is determined by what the man himself is.

A man's sentences and words, and even his pronounciation of those words, is an advertisement which he hangs upon the outside of him of what he keeps in store on the inside of him.

The German language for example, differs from the French just as Germans differ from the Frenchmen A German does not think in the way that a Frenchman does, and therefore his grammar and vocabulary have to be different.

Even when an Irishman speaks English you know that he came from somewhere about Cork or Tipperary. There are valid reasons for the move that is now being made in Ireland in behalf of the resuscitation of the old, nearly obsolete, Irish language.

Of course, the English do not smile upon their effort, for the average Englishman can conceive of no good reason why everybody should not speak English. In fact, why everybody should not have been born between the Thames and the Tweed.

But the desire of Ireland in the matter is one to be encouraged, and not alone for reasons of sentiment and of loyalty to its past, but because an Irishman cannot be quite true to his own mental constitution while speaking anything but Irish.

Brogue is an essential ingredient of an Irishman and ought to have a chance to work itself out in his phrases and their inflection and intonation. Nations secure to themselves and to the world certain advantages by preserving their national identity, and that is a condition which difference of language helps to promote.

There is no necessary inconsistency between fellowship among nations and the maintenance of sharply drawn frontiers and the most distinct national characteristics.

Each of a number of families in any given neighborhood has its own house with its own domestic exclusiveness, its own doors, which are most of the time kept closed, and its own dooryard, upon which members of neighboring families are not expected to trample. And all these inter-household barriers work to the advantage of each household, and thus contribute to the total advantage of the community.

Each family has its own life to live, its own specific problem to work out, its own peculiar contribution to make to the community's total assets. And it best does that by keeping rather snugly on its own ground and within its own walls, working upon its own particular lines and not attempting to work upon a variety of lines all at once.

It is like the words in a sentence where each word by having a separate meaning that is all its own accomplishes the significance of the sentence in its entirety.

In the same way each separate nation is to be thought of as having its own special and separate life to live, problem to solve and service to render, all of which it best does by the maintenance of pretty sharp lines of individuality and a pretty liberal amount of exclusiveness—just such exclusiveness, in fact, as the barrier of a differing language contributes to promote.

Convenience of travel and of trade would, of course, be secured by means of a universal language, but when it comes to the matter of a nation fulfilling its special national functions, it had better be very faithful to itself, leaving the Irish to be very Irish, the French thoroughly Celtic, and the Germans distinctly Teutonic.

The Great Trio

By ELBERT HUBBARD

IT is not the attainment of knowledge which marks the superior person—the master man: it is the possession of certain qualities.

There are three traits of character, or habits, or personal qualities, which, once attained, mean money in the bank, friends at court, honor and peace at home—power, purpose, poise.

These qualities are Industry, Concentration and Self-reliance.

The man who has these three qualities is in possession of the key that unlocks the coffers of the world and the libraries of Christendom. All doors fly open at his touch. "Oh, he's a lucky dog," they say—and he is.

And the strange part of it is, there is no mystery about the acquirement of these three things; no legerdemain; no rites nor ritual; you do not have to memorize this or that nor ride a goat; the secret of these qualities is not locked up in dead languages; no college can impart them, and the university men who fail, fail for lack of them.

On the other hand, no man succeeded beyond the average who did not possess them. And it is an indictment of our colleges and universities when we consider the fact that the men who have these qualities plus usually acquired them at "The University of Hard Knox"—and in spite of parents, guardians, teachers and next of friends.

Let us take three great Americans and see what made them supremely great—Washington, Jefferson, Franklin.

Let a certain quality stand for each man.

WASHINGTON—SELF-RELIANCE.
JEFFERSON—CONCENTRATION.
FRANKLIN—INDUSTRY.

But each of these men had all three of these qualities, and without these qualities the world would never have heard of them, and without these three men America today would not be known as a nation.

It was only the self-reliance of Washington at Valley Forge which saved independence from being "a lost hope." Washington was hooted and denounced for preferring starvation to defeat, but the persistence of the man never faltered. It was a losing fight for most of those long, dragging, dread nine years—a fight against great odds—poverty against wealth, farmers against trained troops, barracks against the wind-swept open. But Washington believed in his cause, and, best of all, he believed in himself. "It is only a question of which side gets discouraged first. I know we will outlast them. Give in? Never! This fight is mine!"

You can't whip a man who talks like that. And as time went by George III. had brains enough to sense it, Cornwallis felt it, all England began to acknowledge it, and, best of all, America knew it.

It wasn't fighting that won the independence of the Colonies. It was the generalship and the Self-reliance of George Washington. And thus Self-reliance shaped his actions, and finally spread over the land. Our political blessings, as a people, come to us through the unrelenting, unrelaxing Self-reliance of Washington.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

LAST nite Pa went to the barber shop & had his hed shaved beefoar he caim hoam. He thought he looked fine until he got hoam, beekaus the barber had toald him that he looked grate, but wen he caim in to the house & Ma beegan to laff, Pa chainged his mind. Then I beegan to laff, too, & Pa got red in the faice, & toald me that he wud spank me if I dident stop.

For hevings saik, Ma sed to him, wat in the world has happened to yure skull? I simply had my head shaved, sed Pa. I am sure I doant see anything so funny in that.

Well, sed Ma, I certingly do. I do not recall ever having saw a moar truly comick site. Who skalped you, sed Ma. It must surely have been sum crule Injun, beekaus you cud nevver maik me beleeve that a barber wud be heartless enuff to maik a mans hed look like that block of yours. Tee hee hee, sed Ma. I nevver saw anything quite so ridiculous in my life. Look at those ears, Bobbie, sticking out in yure deer father's dome of thought. In fack, deer helpmate, sed Ma, yure ears make yure hed look like a aero-plain, excep that a aero-plain is heavier than air, & yure hed isent.

If you doant like this hed, Pa sed, I will go down to the club for the eevning. I doant care, sed Ma, but beefoar you go to the club you better talk off yure hed & leeve it here, for if you talk it to the club someone thare will shoot at it with a bilyard cue, & git chalk all oaver it. Tee hee hee, Ma sed aggenn. She was laffing so hard that she was crying. Oh, you Jean Val-jeen, she sed. Be a deer, sweet man, sed Ma, & flap yure ears jest once for the wife & child you love.

Then Pa ran out of the house & he dident cum back till lait, so I went to bed. In the morning wen I caim down to breakfast Pa was at the tabel & he had on a wig. It was a funny looking wig, but it looked a lot better than Pa's shaived hed. As soon as his hair grows out he is going to give me the wig to play horse with, it looks jest like a horse's mane & is the saim color as Unkel's sorrel horse.

Ma laffs almost as hard at the wig as she did at Pa's bald hed, only she dosent call him Jean Val-jeen now, she calls him Zaza.
